

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH FINAL

HOPE ENDS FOR 46
FELL INTO GULF;
17 BODIES FOUND

All Rafts Recovered
Empty After Crash in 100-Mile Winds Only 5 Minutes From Possible Safety.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 16 (AP)—A fourth life raft from the National Air Lines DC-6 plane that plunged into the storm-tossed Gulf of Mexico with 46 persons aboard was found empty today, "apparently ending all hope for survivors."

Three other life rafts—all empty—were found bobbing on the choppy waters yesterday by an armada of planes and ships that combed the waters. Seventeen bodies have been recovered.

The Coast Guard said the fourth raft was recovered, "accounting for all of the rafts and apparently ending any hope for survivors." The raft had never been inflated.

The Coast Guard said even if survivors had managed to get on the rafts that the rough waters would have probably washed them overboard.

100-Mile Winds.
The four-engine plane, flying in 100-mile-per-hour winds, was en route from Tampa, Fla., to New Orleans when it crashed last Saturday afternoon about 44 miles southeast of Mobile, Ala., less than five minutes from possible safety.

Many persons prominent in business and society were aboard the big airliner when it left Tampa at 3 p.m. Saturday for the 419-mile run across the Gulf. It was due in New Orleans at 8:25 p.m.

Some of the passengers were en route here for Mardi Gras festivities. A search, started when the plane failed to arrive, expanded hourly despite 30-foot waves, which hampered rescue vessels. SOS signals were heard early yesterday in New Orleans, at Gulfport, Miss., Biloxi, Miss., and at Mobile. They were sent by a hand-cranked transmitter of a type carried by the DC-6. Receipt of the distress calls was reported from about 1 a.m. to 6 a.m. They stepped before a direction finder could establish the point of origin.

First Such Crash in Year.
It was the first fatal crash of a regularly scheduled United States airliner since a National DC-6 fell at Elizabeth, N.J., on Feb. 11, 1952. Thirty persons died in that crash.

At Miami, Fla., National's vice president in charge of operations, Capt. E. J. Kershaw, said the DC-6 in Saturday's crash may have met "tornado conditions."

The weather at the time the plane went down was extremely gusty, with high seas crashing 15 feet into the air and poor visibility. Today the seas were calm. Waves were only two to five feet high.

Kershaw, a veteran pilot, said that preliminary examinations of conditions during the flight and of some debris recovered had not revealed any malfunctions in the plane.

Kershaw noted that Capt. E. A. Springer, pilot of the DC-6 met turbulent weather conditions about the time of his last report, "causing him to descend from 14,000 feet to 4,000 feet."

Investigation by C.A.A.
An investigation was started by Civil Aeronautics Administration authorities.

Besides plane debris, rescue workers found a small bag containing valentines, clothing and personal items. Billy Lavender, photographer for the Mobile Press-Register, said after a flight to the scene of the crash that the plane went down about 12 miles short of

GASOLINE GOES UP
5 TO 6 CENTS AS
PRICE WAR BREAKS

Gasoline prices were increased 5 to 6 cents a gallon today at a majority of filling stations in the city and county, marking a break in the price war which had been going on since last November. The higher prices in some instances equaled the old ceiling prices.

The ceiling price varied, depending on grade, from 24.5 cents per gallon to 28.5 cents, regular, and from 26.5 to 28.5 cents for premium gasoline. Most station operators who reported raising their prices today said they would stay within that range.

New prices range from 24.4 and 26.5 cents for regular to 26.4 and 28.5 cents for premium. During the price war, costs were as low as 18.9 cents for regular. Many operators said they were "waiting to see what happened." Those who increased their prices said the supplying companies had withdrawn their subsidies, which had been in effect since the "war" began, and that forced the retail increases.

SLOVAK BARUCH
KIN OF BERNARD

MOSCOW, Feb. 16 (UP)—A Soviet provincial government newspaper has attacked lawyer Tomassoff Baruch of Bratislava, Slovakia, as an anti-Communist conspirator and linked him with the American Bernard Baruch.

The newspaper Soviet Transcarpathia, organ of the Carpatho-Russian government, said yesterday Tomassoff Baruch was a "relative of the notorious American atom-bomb brandisher Bernard Baruch."

The Bratislava lawyer was accused of being a member of a Zionist anti-Communist group of conspirators. He is alleged to have aided in keeping an "uninterrupted flow of dollars from America into rabbinical offices" in the Soviet Union.

ROSENBERGS' NEW EXECUTION DATE

Order Issued on Atomic Spies After Rejection of Their Appeal by Eisenhower.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (AP)—Execution of atomic spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg today was set for the week of March 9.

United States District Judge Irving Kaufman scheduled the new execution date for the husband and wife, whose appeal to the President for clemency has been rejected.

The pair was convicted nearly two years ago, after a trial in which they pleaded guilty to conspiring to transmit atomic information to Russia. They have been in Sing Sing prison's death house ever since.

United States Marshal William Carroll said the date of the execution may be March 12, and the hour 11 p.m.

Rosenberg, 34 years old, and his wife, 36, originally had been scheduled to die in the electric chair Jan. 14. The judge postponed the execution to permit time for the President to act on their clemency appeal.

President Eisenhower last week turned them down.

Setting of the new execution date came amid a growing clamor over the case. Hundreds of people picked the White House late last week in protest against the death penalty.

For the second time, the Roman Catholic apostolic delegation in Washington last week informed the Government that it had received large numbers of pleas for mercy.

Last night Dr. Bernard Loomer, a Protestant leader, renewed the plea of 2300 Protestant clergy for commutation of the sentence.

No American civilian ever has died for espionage, the crime of which the couple was convicted.

The court proceeding today was simply an announcement by the judge of the new execution date. The presence of neither the Government prosecutor nor of a defense counsel was required.

Marshal Carroll said he will go to Sing Sing prison to discuss with the warden the exact hour and date of the execution.

Only action by the Supreme Court—which has twice rejected appeals in the case—could now save the couple from death, barring reconsideration of the case by Eisenhower.

In sentencing the couple to death two years ago, Judge Kaufman called their crime worse than murder.

Appointment of Thomas Callanan, as soon as he left the sheriff's office, to be director of educational and welfare fund, at a salary of $150 a week and expenses, was greeted with bitter complaints. Some union members thought the lucrative position should have gone to a steamfitter.

Surrounded by strong-armed assistants capable of enforcing his orders, Lawrence Callanan has tapped new sources of revenue, both within the ranks of the 1500-man union and those of contractors.

Contractors are required to pay an amount equal to 5 per cent of their union employees' straight-time pay to the educational and welfare fund. Union dues, which were $2 a month in the pre-Callanan days, have been raised, and steamfitters now are assessed $1 a day for "union expenses."

Another source of resentment has been "logs," assessed against union members to help finance the political campaigns of former Sheriff Callanan and his Democratic faction. Union members falling to comply with Callanan's orders were apt to find themselves without jobs.

CALLANAN OFFICE, U.S. JET FIRES
HOME BOMBINGS TO BE SUED BY GRAND JURY

Dowd Issues Subpoena for Ex-Sheriff, Steamfitters' Boss and Records of Union in 'War of Nerves.'

A grand jury investigation of last night's bombing at the offices of the AFL Steamfitters' Union and of a previous bombing at the home of former Sheriff Thomas F. Callanan was announced by Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd, who issued subpoenas for books and records of Steamfitters' Local 562 and of the union's "welfare fund."

Subpoenas also were issued for the former sheriff and his ex-convict brother, Lawrence L. Callanan, boss of the steamfitters, for grand jury appearances at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Police arrested John J. Vitale, gangster representative of the Capone syndicate, and four other men for questioning in the bombings. Booked at headquarters with Vitale were: Joseph Costello, one of the founders of the Ace Cab Co.; Joseph Giardano, Anthony Giardano and Meyer Cohen. Giardano, Cohen and Giardano described themselves as merchants.

"It appears that a war of nerves is going on in the underworld," Dowd observed.

The circuit attorney added that the resources of his office, and those of the grand jury, would be used "in a determined effort to learn who is responsible for the bombings, and also the cause of the war."

Dowd has four police officers attached to his office. The previous bombing, on the night of Feb. 3, caused relatively minor damage at the home of former Sheriff Callanan, who now holds the remunerative job of director of the $1,000,000-a-year steamfitters' educational and welfare fund.

In last night's blast, a heavier bomb, described by police as black powder tamped in a piece of iron soil pipe, exploded outside the office of Lawrence Callanan, at the Union Labor building, 1538 South Vandeventer avenue.

Placed on Windowsill.
The bomb, placed on the windowsill of Callanan's office on the south side of the three-story brick building, exploded at 8:15 o'clock, rocking the neighborhood.

The window frame was smashed, a hole was blown in the wall and glass partitions inside the building were shattered as were windows of the building and in two neighboring residences.

Mrs. Chester Anderick, wife of the caretaker, who was in her basement living quarters, was the only person in the building who was not injured. Firemen were called, as a crowd of spectators gathered, but there was no fire. No damage estimate was made.

Both Callanans brothers insisted they had no idea who was responsible for the bombing.

Lawrence Callanan, recently returned from Florida, said merely, "I don't know."

Thomas Callanan, who was defeated for renomination for sheriff in the August primary, told a reporter, "It's hard to tell where that is coming from." Both brothers have been powerful forces in local Democratic politics.

The Union Labor building also houses offices of two other large AFL unions, Meat Cutters' Local 88, and Streeter and Bus Operators' Local 788. Glass partitions in those offices, on the second floor, were broken by the blast.

Can't Account for Bombing.
Nicholas M. Blasie, head of the meat cutters organization, said he could not account for the bombing. Officers of the Streeter and Bus Operators' Union made similar observations. Blasie is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor.

The high-handed rule of Lawrence Callanan has caused resentment within the ranks of the Steamfitters' Union.

Appointment of Thomas Callanan, as soon as he left the sheriff's office, to be director of educational and welfare fund, at a salary of $150 a week and expenses, was greeted with bitter complaints. Some union members thought the lucrative position should have gone to a steamfitter.

Surrounded by strong-armed assistants capable of enforcing his orders, Lawrence Callanan has tapped new sources of revenue, both within the ranks of the 1500-man union and those of contractors.

Contractors are required to pay an amount equal to 5 per cent of their union employees' straight-time pay to the educational and welfare fund. Union dues, which were $2 a month in the pre-Callanan days, have been raised, and steamfitters now are assessed $1 a day for "union expenses."

Another source of resentment has been "logs," assessed against union members to help finance the political campaigns of former Sheriff Callanan and his Democratic faction. Union members falling to comply with Callanan's orders were apt to find themselves without jobs.

A. L. Long, president of the Board of Police Commissioners, viewed the bomb damage today. Long said police had done everything possible "in the effort to determine who was responsible for bombing the Thomas Callanan home, at 6047 West Florissant avenue, earlier in the month."

U.S. JET FIRES
FIGHTERS OVER JAPAN, HITS ONE

Intruders Chased Back to Kurile Islands in First Aerial Skirmish Since Warning Was Given to Russia Jan. 13.

TOKYO, Feb. 16 (AP)—Two United States warplanes challenged two Russian-type fighters over northern Japan today, damaged one in a brief skirmish, and chased both intruders to the Soviet-held Kurile Islands, the Far East Air Force said.

It was the first time Soviet-type planes had appeared over northern Japan since the Tokyo Government, with strong United States backing, on Jan. 13 warned its neighbor to the north against such unauthorized flights.

The Air Force identified the planes as LA-11s, a Russian-built propeller-driven single seat fighter in the 400-mile-an-hour class. The American planes were F-84 Thunderjets, fast planes but considerably slower than the Sabre jets used in Korea.

Order to Land Ignored.
The Air Force announcement said the Thunderjets intercepted the LA-11s near Nemuro on the eastern tip of northern Hokkaido this morning. They signaled the intruders to land. One Thunderjet opened fire when the order was ignored.

One of the LA-11s was hit in the fuselage and wings. Both planes fled toward the Kuriles.

The Thunderjets broke off the chase "to avoid violation of Russian-held territory," the Air Force said.

It is only 4 1/2 miles from Nemuro to the nearest Russian-held island. Japan's air boundary is only 2 1/4 miles from the tip of the Peninsula—seconds in a jet.

The Thunderjets were on routine patrol missions when radar operators on the ground spotted the intruders. The radar men flashed the signal that sent the United States planes roaring in pursuit.

2-25 Shot Down Nearby.
It was in the same general area, within sight of the Kuriles, that a United States B-29 Superfort was shot down Oct. 7, Russia protested to the United States that the Superfort violated Russian territory and opened fire on Soviet planes. The United States, in reply, denied both charges and said the Superfort was not armed.

The FEAF gave few details of today's action. It did not speculate on the nationality of the LA-11 pilots. In the Japanese Foreign Office, a spokesman said "your guess is as good as mine" about identity of the pilots.

Air bases in Japan had orders not to comment.

The incident afforded a good demonstration of the effectiveness of the radar defense of Japan.

Gen. O. P. Weyland, FEAF chief, called this radar network "the tightest airway system in the world."

Every plane that flies through Japanese skies at night or day, sunshine or storm—is identified. Every month, the Japan air defense force spots and identifies an average of 77,000 planes.

Close Watch on Reds.
Any plane that flies near Japan and adjacent Communist territory place a semaphore marker in the exact spot where Russian aircraft have been located. As the Russian aircraft move—the semaphore is moved.

Powerful radar eyes, in an adjoining underground fastness, lock on the possible intruder. These same radar eyes are watching all Allied jets on patrol.

As strange craft approach an alarm is rung in the ready rooms of jet squadrons at northern air bases. Radar operators concentrate on steering the American jets to a point that will head off the intruders. Constant instructions flash by radio to the United States pilots.

Meanwhile an anti-aircraft alarm blazes through the vast northern defense system. Radar-operated guns swing into position. If the intruders break through the defending jets, the big guns will be ready.

REVENUE WORKERS
AID 2065 TAXPAYERS
ON TWO 'DAYS OFF'

A total of 2065 taxpayers who appeared at the Internal Revenue Bureau here the last two Saturdays were given assistance although the offices were to have been closed. It was learned today.

Seeing the crowds and realizing that many persons had made a special trip downtown, Ernest Flinn, assistant director of Internal Revenue here, ordered the doors opened.

He enlisted the help of a number of employees, who worked from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., taking care of all taxpayers who appeared.

The bureau's office in the basement of the Federal Building, Twelfth boulevard and Market street, will be open on each of the next four Saturdays from 8:15 a.m. to 5 p.m. for convenience of taxpayers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—A Defense Department request for $1,200,000,000 in new funds for the current year was rejected today by the House Appropriations Committee.

The committee said the department should use available funds to finance the programs for which the new money had been requested.

House Republican leaders scheduled the bill for House action Wednesday.

Most of the new money sought was for Army, Navy and Air Force military pay, increases in which were voted by Congress since the last Defense Department budget was approved.

The request for additional funds came from former President Truman before he left office last month. In some cases, President Eisenhower revised the requests, but in others he made no changes.

The additional money requested was for use during the balance of the current fiscal year which ends June 30. The committee said no vital programs would be hurt if the extra money were taken from other funds available to the department.

First Fund Bill of Session.
The defense fund requests were considered along with recommendations for additional money for numerous other agencies. It is the first appropriation bill of the Eighty-third Congress.

In all, Congress was asked to approve $2,313,719,590 in supplementary appropriations for the current year.

The committee lopped off a total of 60 per cent of those funds, giving approval to only $904,672,920 in extra money. Far and away the biggest chunk cut out by the committee lay in defense funds.

The committee rejected in full a request for $75,000 for the President's Council of Economic Advisors and approved instead a $25,000 fund for the President to appoint an economic adviser and an economic advisory staff.

Chairman Taber (Rep., New York), told reporters Eisenhower requested inclusion of the $25,000 for an economic adviser and did not object to the committee's action refusing funds for the Council of Economic Advisors.

A request for $350,000 for the President's emergency fund was chopped down to $75,000. Committee members said there is an adequate balance in this fund and that it can be reviewed when the regular White House budget is considered later this year.

Funds for Various Agencies.
Here's what the committee recommended for executive agencies: STATE DEPARTMENT: $2,500,000, a cut of $500,000, the entire reduction being in funds requested for the bureau of public roads and the civil aeronautics administration.

LABOR DEPARTMENT: $33,000,000, a cut of $7,200,000. The cuts included $5,000,000 in funds for unemployment compensation to veterans, $2,000,000 in funds for grants to states for unemployment compensation and employment service administration, and $200,000 in salaries and expenses.

FEDERAL SECURITY AGENCY: $340,000,000, a cut of $24,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee overrode President Eisenhower's go-slow request and voted 21 to 4 today to cut individual income taxes on July 1.

The cut, if it becomes law, would amount to about 5 per cent for most taxpayers in this calendar year. An additional cut of about 5 per cent would go into effect on Jan. 1, 1954, making the total reduction about 10 per cent.

Legislation providing for the tax cut was approved by the Ways and Means Committee despite Eisenhower's statement to Congress two weeks ago that "until we can determine the extent to which expenditures can be reduced, it would not be wise to reduce our revenues."

To Delay Passage.
In line with that, Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. said the tax-cutting bill would not be called up for action on the floor until a balanced budget is in sight.

The chairman of the Rules Committee said however, that the legislation will be pigeon-holed until at least May 1.

Chairman Allen (Rep., Illinois), of the Rules Committee said that before his group could clear tax cutting proposals for floor action, "it must be apparent that the Federal budget will be greatly reduced, in order that we can live on our federal income without the necessity of borrowing another dollar."

Even if the bill passes the House in April or May, as Martin believes is likely, the measure still may never get through the Senate, which it would have to do before it could become a law.

Senator Taft (Rep., Ohio), and other Senate Republican leaders are doubtful that Congress will know before fall whether a balanced budget—their first goal—can be achieved.

Reed Pushes for Vote.
The measure approved by the House committee was sponsored by the Chairman, Representative Reed (Rep., New York). Reed immediately said his bill be acted on immediately and without any expression of views from Treasury or other administration officials.

Three Republicans and one Democrat—Representatives Keefe (Rep., New Jersey), Holmes (Rep., Washington), Byrnes (Rep.), Wisconsin, and Camp (Dem.), Georgia—voted against the bill.

The Democrats offered five motions in an attempt to get the bill out of the House. The House voted on the first motion and other Administration officials before voting on the bill, but each of their motions was defeated on a straight party vote.

Estimate on Revenue Loss.
Colin Starn, chief congressional tax adviser, estimated that the loss of revenue in the 1954 fiscal year under terms of Reed's bill would be $1,500,000,000.

Representative Cooper (Dem., Tennessee), speaking for the nine Democrats on the committee who voted for the bill, read reporters a statement which said in part: "We joined with the majority in this action at this time because we favor the earliest possible relief for the individual income taxpayer, consistent with the nation's fiscal stability in a time of crisis."

Reed wanted to make the income tax reduction coincide with expiration of the excess profits tax on corporations, now scheduled to die June 30. Some members of Congress, including Taft, have taken the position that it might be better to extend the excess profits tax.

Taft recently has been talking as if he favors postponing both the expiration of the excess profits tax and the presently scheduled Jan. 1 drop in personal income taxes until mid-1954.

The Senate could rewrite Reed's bill to accomplish those aims. But the measure would then have to go back to the House for consideration, and Reed has made it emphatically clear that he will not consent.

U.N. PLANES RAZE 100 BUILDINGS AT RED BASE, DOWN 3 ENEMY JETS

Area a 'Sea of Smoke' —Action Follows
Smashing of Two Power Generators.

SEOUL, Feb. 16 (UP)—More than 200 United Nations fighter-bombers attacked a sprawling Communist target 15 miles from Pyongyang today, destroying nearly 100 buildings and leaving the area a "sea of smoke."

While the planes rained bombs, rockets, napalm and bullets on Kyompo, a troop and supply concentration south of the North Korean capital, American Sabre jets screening the attacking force shot down three Communist MIG-15s, probably destroyed one and damaged four others.

Today's attack came on the heels of two other big U.N. aerial blows. Yesterday, U.N. fighter-bombers struck the Suho reservoir along the Yalu river and knocked out two power generators. Last night United States Superfortresses pounded Communist transport targets eight miles from Pyongyang.

More than 500 Air Force, Marine and United States carrier planes turned the giant Suho plant into a pile of junk last June 23, but the Communists evidently had rebuilt it.

Sabre pilots screening the Sunday raiders shot down two MIGs, probably destroyed a third and damaged four.

"One of Largest Strikes,"

The Fifth Air Force called the Kyompo raid "one of the largest strikes mounted in recent weeks." Four Air Force wings and two Marine air groups took part.

First Lt. Harold Fischer of Swa City, Ia., destroyed two MIGs, boosting his total damage. He also damaged one MIG. The other destruction claim went to First Lt. Joseph McConnell Jr. of Apple Valley, Calif.

Major James Jabara of Wichita, Kan., America's first jet ace, claimed he destroyed one and damaged four. He returned to Korea Jan. 12.

On his first tour of duty, Jabara destroyed six MIGs, probably destroyed one and damaged four. He returned to Korea Jan. 12.

On the ground, South Korean infantrymen attacked two Communist positions southwest of Kumang on the eastern front early today. They then moved to withdraw, then wrecked trenches and fortifications.

Fragmentary and unconfirmed reports indicated U.N. and Communist troops fought inside the Panmunjom neutral zone last night or early today. Official sources refused immediate comment and the U.N. press camp at Munsan said it was "waiting for a report."

Temperatures plunged below zero on the battlefield after almost a week of unseasonably mild weather.

The eastern front was the coldest—31 degrees below.

A Navy communiqué said the heavy cruiser Toledo and the destroyers Wedderburn and Moore opened the third day of a naval attack on the North Korean east coast port of Wonsan. A big gun position was destroyed and hits were scored on supply buildings and camouflaged barracks, the communiqué said.

A Navy announcement in Washington Saturday said the destroyers De Haven and Moore would probably be at Wonsan for the anniversary bombardment. It also named minesweepers and tugs expected to join in the action. The announcement of the probable line-up of ships before the action was unusual.

HIGH PRINCESS OF INDIA CONVICTED IN FATAL BEATING

KARACHI, Feb. 16 (UP)—One of the great princesses of India, the Begum Jangmah—the "senior wife" of the Nawab of Bhopal—was convicted today of causing "grievous hurt" to a 13-year-old maid servant.

Police charged that the girl, Bano, died as a result of a beating administered by the Begum after fleeing her place in the former Indian princely state near Bombay.

The Princess denied the charge. She said the girl died of natural causes. And, in any event, she argued, her royal status made her immune from the jurisdiction of Pakistan courts.

The court ruled otherwise. She was fined the equivalent of $1860.

FEDERICO CHAVES RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF PARAGUAY

ASUNCION, Feb. 16 (UP)—Federico Chaves was re-elected President of Paraguay yesterday in a one-party election.

Chaves was appointed temporary President by Congress on Sept. 11, 1949, after Felipe Molas Lopez was forced out of office. He was elected to a three-year term on July 16, 1950. His new term will be for five years.

Chaves was the candidate of the Colorado party, the only legal party in this country. Voters also chose Colorado party members to the House of Representatives and sectional electoral boards.

HOPE ENDS FOR 46 ON AIRLINER THAT FELL INTO GULF

Fort Morgan, site of a small airfield.

"It's possible that the pilot of the airliner was attempting to make it there or somewhere along this coast for an emergency landing," he said. "Land was less than five minutes flying time from the spot where the plane crashed."

The plane came down in water 90 feet deep. Heavy seas caused it to break up and allow bodies of the victims to float to the surface.

Ensign Frank Polk, aboard a patrol boat, said the bodies were floating around when his craft arrived on the scene Sunday afternoon.

No Life Jackets on Bodies.

"Judging from the appearance of the bodies," Polk added, "I would say they were all killed instantly. None had life jackets on."

Two watches—one a man's, the other a woman's—found on the bodies were stopped at 5:10 p.m. Names on the passenger list were difficult to identify at first.

Some were Florida vacationers. Some had transferred to the plane from other airlines for the flight to New Orleans.

Mrs. Alfred Bergman was en route to visit her husband in Houston, Tex. Friends said that before she boarded the plane she told them that "I don't think I'll ever make it." Mrs. Bergman's first husband was the late Billy de Beck, creator of the Barney Google comic strip.

Returning From Vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Schnorbus, also of Houston, cut short their Florida vacation to return to their eight-year-old daughter, Vicky, who was homesick.

Other Florida vacationers on the flight included Mrs. Eleonora Korkowska, second secretary of the Polish embassy in Washington, and Mrs. Rodmi Osman of the Polish consulate in New York.

Another passenger was Mrs. J. C. Rathborne, wife of the director of the New Orleans Times-Picayune and herself a prominent figure in Louisiana Republican affairs.

Seventeen-year-old Sherrod Seagraves was returning from a Florida vacation to his home at Osceola, Ark., where he was president of the high school student council.

In addition to Capt. Springer, the crew members, all of Miami, included Co-pilot C. T. Stettner; flight engineer E. B. Camplin; and Stewardesses Lillian Blameuser and Betty Baucum, who was "Miss Miami Beach" of 1950.

LESTER PEARSON AND DULLES MEET IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—Lester B. Pearson, Canadian foreign secretary and president of the United Nations General Assembly which will convene in New York soon, conferred here yesterday with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

It was the first meeting of the Canadian and American foreign policy chiefs since the change in Administration here. It was described as informal, and both the State Department and the Canadian embassy declined to say anything further about it.

49 Leaders Call on Eisenhower, U.N. to Act on Red Anti-Semitism

Letter Urges 4-Point Program of Warning, Withholding Funds, Word to Arabs on Ending War With Israel.

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Feb. 16.—Alarmed by the sudden rise of anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union, a group of 49 leaders of American opinion yesterday asked President Eisenhower and the United Nations to initiate a four-point program "to prevent disaster."

In a letter the 49 leaders called on the President, Secretary-General Trygve Lie, and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., Chief American delegate to the U.N., to:

1. Issue a solemn public condemnation and warning that Soviet attacks on the Jewish people are an incitement to a new epidemic of pogroms in countries where anti-Jewish feeling is overt or latent—the Soviet bloc, east and west Germany, the Arab states, and North Africa.

2. Declare that the help of the United States in terms of funds, Point IV aid, and other forms of assistance will be withheld from any country which engages in such attacks.

3. Make clear to the Arab world the importance of reaching a formal settlement of the Palestine war as an end in itself and as a prerequisite to productive relations with the United States.

4. Place on the U. N. agenda a proposal for a watchdog committee to prevent anti-Semitic violence anywhere as contrary to the U. N. charter and the principle of peaceful association between countries.

The Kremlin's new policy threatens violence and civil dissension in Germany, the Middle East and North Africa and "is designed to divide them from the west," the letter said.

Defense of Israel.

The letter also pointed out that the Arab world, now in ferment against feudalism, could produce a new wave of anti-Semitic violence and a new demand for armed assault on Israel, and that an already encircled Israel could be "ruined" by the need to defend itself against greater sums to defense.

Among signers were Bishop Fred Pierce Corson, president of the Methodist church council of bishops; retired Brig. Gen. Tel-

TIDELANDS NOT NAVAL RESERVE, BROWNELL SAYS

He Asserts Truman Order Merely Gave Navy Authority Interior Department Had.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—Attorney General Brownell held today that an order issued by President Truman in January did not convert offshore submerged lands into a naval reserve.

Brownell's opinion, set forth in a letter, was read by Senator Gordon (Rep.), Oregon, as the Senate Interior Committee opened hearings on legislation dealing with ownership of the controversial oil-rich area.

Brownell said former Attorney General McGrath had approved the Truman order "on the understanding that it did not intend to nor did it in fact or in law create a naval petroleum reserve within the meaning of the statute."

Brownell's Opinion.

Brownell said he too is of the opinion the order did not create a naval oil reserve to be administered by the Navy within the meaning of the law.

Rather, he said, the general effect of the order is merely to transfer to the Navy such authority over the area as had previously been conferred on the Secretary of the Interior.

(The United Press said Brownell charged in his letter that the Department of Justice under Truman, had "objected on legal grounds to the promulgation of an order which would have constituted these lands as a naval petroleum reserve.")

Truman's Order.

Truman's order was issued shortly before he retired as President. While President, Truman twice vetoed legislation designed to give the states ownership of at least a part of the submerged lands—that part extending seaward for three miles, except in the case of Texas where the distance would have been 10 1/2 miles.

The issue of whether the states or the Federal Government should own these lands, extending for 175 miles to the continental shelf in some cases, was an issue in the presidential campaign.

President Eisenhower indicated he would have signed the bill which Truman vetoed last year—that giving states title out to their historical boundaries, or generally three miles.

The hearing which opened today was on various proposals to decide title to the lands. The first witness was Senator Holland (Dem.), Florida, who, with 39 other Senators, re-introduced the bill Truman vetoed last year.

Senator Murray Proposes U.S. Intervene Against Anti-Semitism.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (UP)—Senator Murray (Dem.), Montana, today introduced a resolution denouncing Soviet persecution of Jews and instructing the State Department to intervene with the Russian Government.

Murray wanted it approved immediately, but on motion of Senate Republican Leader Robert A. Taft the resolution was sent to the Foreign Relations Committee.

Taft promised action on the resolution this week.

Senator Ives (Rep.), New York, a co-sponsor of the resolution said he had received letters from Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and United Nations Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., expressing their concern over the problem.

Ives and American Federation of Labor President George Meany yesterday called for the United States to seek United Nations action on the issue in messages to a New York conference of the National Committee for Labor Israel.

New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said, "This Russian program of terror concerns not alone the people of Jewish faith, but also all Americans and all the free nations of the earth."

United States Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas said the Soviet persecution of Jews is "a political instrument against Israel" and that the Communist aim "is conquest of oil and warm water ports."

UNION OF CHILE WITH ARGENTINA URGED BY PERON

He Says Economic Ties Are Not Enough—Wants to Take in Other Countries Later.

(Related Story on Page 1B).

SANTIAGO, Feb. 16 (AP)—President Juan Peron of Argentina was quoted yesterday as saying he wants a full union of Argentina and Chile now, with Brazil and other American countries joining the nucleus later.

Peron, in an interview published by La Nacion, a Chilean pro-government newspaper, said that on his forthcoming visit to Chile he would "proclaim to the Chilean people the necessity of achieving an indestructible union between Chile and Argentina. Economic unity is not enough. We must achieve full union of both nations."

He was quoted as saying he and President Carlos Ibanez del Campo of Chile may achieve now the union desired by the early liberators from Spain, Bernardo O'Higgins of Chile and Jose de San Martin of Argentina.

"Latin America on March," Peron said if such a union is achieved "then we shall be what we deserve to be, because of our people and our resources. Latin America is on the march, toward its stellar place in the concert of nations."

Peron said Argentina is ready to undergo all the necessary sacrifices to reach such a union. He is due to visit Chile this week.

At the same time, he said the people understand him and support him because they know that what he does is for the good of Argentina and Latin America.

The timing of the Peron visit has stirred up a controversy on this side of the Andes.

Peron will be in Chile Feb. 20 to 27, at the height of the campaign in this country's congressional elections to be held March 1. The opposition to President Ibanez, an old friend of Peron, charged that the trip was merely to help the Ibanez forces win control of Congress in the elections.

Denial by Government.

The government, in denying the charges, said the invitation to Peron was issued three months ago, that the timing was merely accidental, and that Ibanez didn't need outside help to win an election.

In the debate, Alfredo Silva Carvallo of the Social Christian (Conservative) party told the Chamber of Deputies the Peron visit during an election campaign "causes a sensation of stupor, particularly if one takes into account that the Argentine regime has fundamental differences with the concepts of democracy."

MORE BONDS ARE BEING CASHED THAN CONGRESS EXPECTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—The Treasury has told Congress the public is cashing in savings bonds at a slower rate than the Treasury expected—but faster than Congress provided for.

Sales are running as expected—a little less than redemptions on an annual basis.

Any business recession, which might bring a big increase in savings bond redemptions, would strain facilities of banks and the Treasury to service the debt, officials said.

The testimony was disclosed today by the release of transcripts of hearings before a House Appropriations subcommittee.

Congress provided for handling 75,000,000 redemptions. E. L. Kilby, commissioner of the public debt, told the committee that experience now indicates there will be 91,000,000 redemptions in the 12 months ending next June 30.

The Treasury is seeking an additional appropriation of $2,300,000 to handle the extra book work caused by the estimated 16,000,000 additional redemptions.

ST. LOUIS NEEDS LEGISLATORS' AID TO CHECK DECAY, CIVIC LEADERS SAY

Members of Legislature
From This Area Are Told Organization of 300 Persons Will Be Formed for Progress.

St. Louis must have the help of the Missouri Legislature if it is to check decay and assure its future as a progressive city, sponsors of the new civic organization being formed here, told state legislators from St. Louis and St. Louis county last night.

The legislators were guests of a committee heading the civic movement at a dinner at the Park Plaza Hotel. A broad program of improvement, starting with a big city bond issue, was discussed in general terms.

Ethan A. H. Shepley, one of the sponsors, explained that an organization of 300 members to represent all phases of civic endeavor in St. Louis is being formed to plan a broad, non-partisan program of long-range improvements.

"Community of Interest."

"There is a community of interest here, and it is to the interest of the Legislature that St. Louis continues to develop as a modern city," he told the legislators.

J. Wesley McAfee, another sponsor, likewise emphasized the community of interest and the need for cooperation from the General Assembly in realizing the city's many potential assets.

No specific legislation was mentioned, but former Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann said the city's basic income would have to be increased, for bond issues alone could not provide a financial solution for all the problems to be solved.

Earnings Tax Renewal Urged.

It has been pointed out that renewal of the city earnings tax on a permanent basis is necessary to keep the city's operating finances on a firm footing and to release certain diverted taxes for their original purpose of supporting municipal bonds. Legislative action would be necessary.

Many of those who attended the informal meeting were accompanied by their wives. Other members of the sponsoring committee were Sidney R. Baer, Arthur A. Blumeyer, David R. Calhoun Jr., James M. Douglas and Powell B. McFadden, City Counselor James E. Crowe and Robert Smith, secretary to Mayor Joseph M. Darst, were present.

Legislators present included Senators Hartwell G. Crain, E. Gary Davidson, David A. Heist and Charles A. Witte, and Representatives George D. Will Jr., Milford T. English, Samuel B. Murphy, A. Clifford Jones, Mrs. Jennie S. Walsh, Robert M. Uka, William Siefert, Joseph W. Kins, John P. O'Reilly, John Griffin, Forrest Mitterdorf and Eugene P. Walsh.

TAVERN OWNER IS CHARGED WITH AFTER-HOURS SALES

Leon R. Fuchs, 4209 Lindell boulevard, owner of Leon's, a restaurant and tavern at 322 Whittier street, was arrested early yesterday by members of police liquor squad who said they found liquor being served on the premises in violation of state and city regulations on taverns closing hours.

Police said Fuchs admitted that he was violating the law but that he explained he felt that people who work after midnight Saturday, the legal closing hour, were entitled to buy a drink and that, further, tavern owners who observe legal hours cannot make a living.

Police said 21 persons were drinking in the tavern when they entered. Fuchs was booked. None of the customers arrested.

HELD IN ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

A man who told police he was Donald S. Flotron, of the 3600 block of North Eleventh street, was held suspected of attempted robbery, after officers interrupted a scuffle late Saturday night in front of a liquor store at 2309 Franklin avenue.

Maurice Gordon, 5851 DeGuerre avenue, the store owner, told police he grappled with Flotron after Flotron, pretending to have a weapon in his pocket, tried to hold up the establishment. A plate glass window was broken in the struggle.

Girl Stricken by Polio 6 Years Ago Wins World Figure Skating Title

DAVOS, Switzerland, Feb. 16 (UP)—Tenley Albright, first United States girl to win the world figure skating championship, sidestepped a professional career today with the grace which characterized her spectacular displays of compulsory and free skating figures.

"I love skating for skating," the 17-year-old ballerina from Boston who won the unanimous acclaim of the seven-man panel of judges said. "I want to continue as an amateur."

Six years ago her hopes of becoming a champion skater appeared doomed when she was stricken by poliomyelitis. However, the attack was of the non-paralytic type and four months later she won the eastern United States juvenile championship.

Miss Albright, who built up a big lead over the 19 other competitors who represented eight countries in this compulsory figure skating, gave such a brilliant exhibition in yesterday's free skating that one Swiss skating expert said, "such combinations have never been performed before by a woman."

Miss Albright's maneuvers—the double axel, double loop, double pitterberger and double solchow—thrilled the crowd of 4000 which turned out in cold, windy weather for the final event.

Miss Albright, who will give exhibitions in Switzerland and Paris before returning home for the National and North American championships, was thrilled by her victory.

WILLIAM AND MARY COLLEGE HAS NEW CRIBBING SCANDAL

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Feb. 16—Approximately 30 students, including star football and basketball players, are involved in a cribbing scandal at the College of William and Mary, the Associated Press learned today.

A source close to the college told a reporter the students involved had either quit school or had been suspended after an honor council meeting last weekend. Some were suspended for failure to report an honor code violation.

This was the second scandal involving this second oldest college in America in less than two years. In August 1931, college officials probed reports of alleged tampering with high school transcripts and grades in order to make prospective athletes eligible for admission to William and Mary.

CLAIMS MEMBERSHIP IN G.A.R. AFTER ORGANIZATION FOLDS UP

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Feb. 16 (AP)—James A. Hard, 111 years old, interrupted his morning shave today to tell reporters he has been a member of the Grand Army of the Republic for "90-odd years." Furthermore, he added, "I have been a second commander for 30-odd years."

Hard's comments came three days after the G.A.R. officially went out of existence in Los Angeles. The Bible and flag of Stanton Post 55 were sent to historical archives in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Charlotte Kratch, president of the Women's Relief Corps G.A.R. auxiliary, said Hard and Albert Woolson, 106, of Duluth, Minn., only surviving members of the Union Army—were not G.A.R. members. Woolson is senior vice commander of the G.A.R. Hard is a former New York state G.A.R. commander and was one of six to attend the last G.A.R. encampment at Indianapolis in 1949.

$75 STOLEN FROM DRUG STORE

Theft of a small safe containing $75 and store records from a Gasen's drug store at 709 North Sixth street was reported to police yesterday. A policeman discovered the burglary when he noticed a rear door had been forced open.

Robbed of Clothes, Gems, $30.

Theft of $30 and clothing and jewelry valued at $500 from her home was reported to police last night by Mrs. Rose DeFilippo, 5260 Maffitt avenue. The money was taken from a purse and a small bank, she said. Police found a kitchen window had been forced.

BOWLING ALLEY ROBBED OF $2500 BY ARMED PAIR

Holdup Men Bind 4 Employees With Tape, Spend More Than Hour Getting Safe Open.

The Esquire Bowling Alley in Richmond Heights was robbed of an estimated $2500 today by two men, who tied four employees with adhesive tape.

Carrying three revolvers, the robbers spent more than an hour in the establishment, at 6720 Clayton road. The money was taken from a safe, which the two men, seemingly in no hurry, finally opened after knocking off the combination.

The robbers, entering by a back stairway shortly after 7 a.m., first accosted the porter, Charles Maghaier, and two pinboys, John Patton and Leon McCoy, all Negroes. One robber kept guard on the three while his accomplice worked on the safe.

Glenn Siems, the alley's director of public relations, arrived about 7:45 a.m. and was ordered at revolver point to sit at a table with Maghaier.

Before leaving, the robbers taped the pinboys to chairs and forced Siems and Maghaier to lie on the floor, where their legs and wrists were taped. Siems freed himself in a few minutes and called police.

The loot was estimated by Paul Schneider, proprietor, who said a pistol, his diamond stickpin and a wristwatch also were taken. Schneider's wife was robbed of $100 two years ago while carrying bowling alley receipts to a bank.

TWO HELD FOR AUTO THEFT; POLICE SAW BROKEN WINDOW

Walter J. Walker and Perry Rayford, Negroes, were arrested and booked yesterday for stealing an automobile yesterday by two policemen who became suspicious when they noticed the machine in which Walker and Rayford were seated had a broken left front window.

Investigation disclosed that the automobile had been stolen from John Taylor, 527 South Garrison avenue. Police reported that Rayford, who lives in the 3400 block of Franklin avenue, admitted the theft, but that Walker denied it. He lives in the 2300 block of Cole street.

The men were arrested by Sgt. Michael Roth and Patrolman Wilford Woolridge not far from Taylor's home.

BARBERS AGREED TO 1.5 PCT. HIKE IN SHARE OF RECEIPTS

Union barbers of St. Louis and St. Louis county have accepted an offer of a 1.5 per cent increase in their share of receipts, it was announced today.

Members of Local 102 of the AFL Barbers Union voted in December to strike for their demand of 75 per cent of receipts, but the international body requested they arbitrate. A 13-man employer-employee committee voted 7 to 6 for a 73 per cent employer offer, it was reported.

The increase will not result in a price rise, M. L. LeVan, secretary-treasurer of the local, said. About 1000 barbers, who make up three-fourths of barbers here, are affected.

EMIL F. SCHRAPPEN DIES, POLICEMAN FOR 50 YEARS

Emil F. Schrappen, a St. Louis policeman for 50 years, died today at his home, 7513A Michigan avenue, after a year's illness. He was 75 years old.

Mr. Schrappen served in 1904 as an emergency special officer during the World's Fair and joined the department as a probationary patrolman in 1907. He was a patrolman in the First District at his retirement, Dec. 1, 1946.

Surviving are two sons, Patrolman Joseph J. Schrappen and Francis Schrappen; a daughter, Mrs. Vernice Teipel, and 10 grandchildren, all of St. Louis. Funeral services will be at 8:30 Wednesday at St. Boniface Catholic Church, 7628 Michigan avenue. Burial will be in Mount Olive Cemetery.

GAMBLER ADONIS GETS 90 DAYS FOR DEFYING SENATORS

Convicted of Contempt of Congress—Already Is Serving Gambling Sentence.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (UP)—Big time gambler Joe Adonis was found guilty of contempt of Congress today and sentenced to three months in jail by Federal Judge John F. X. McGohery.

Adonis, whose real name is Joseph Doto, was found guilty of one count of the 16-count indictment handed down against him in March 1931 for contempt of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee headed by Senator E. A. Tamm, Tennessee.

Adonis had refused to answer questions concerning his business and political activities on the grounds of possible self-incrimination.

The first count of the indictment on which the 51-year-old New Jersey racketeer was adjudged guilty was his refusal to answer the question:

"Did you ever make a political contribution to any campaign, state, local or national, with the funds of the Adonis family?"

Adonis now is serving a two-to-three-year sentence in the New Jersey state prison for violating gambling laws in that state, and has been free in $5000 bail for his appearances in Federal court here.

McGohey turned down a request of Adonis's counsel for a sentence running concurrently with the latter's present term. The judge issued a bench warrant to be lodged as a detainer when the gambler completes his term in the New Jersey prison.

MESSANGER SERVICE CHARGED WITH LABOR ACT VIOLATIONS

Roy Ziegenfuss, owner, and Roy Ziegenfuss Jr., manager, of the Triple A Messenger Service, 117 South Seventh street, were named in an injunction suit today which charges them with violating the Fair Labor Standards Act.

The government alleges violation of the provision of the act which requires minimum pay of 75 cents an hour for all persons engaged in interstate commerce. It contends also that the firm violated the overtime payment provision of the act and the law forbidding employment of children under 16 in interstate commerce.

In addition, it is charged that the firm violated the law which prohibits employment of anyone under 18 as an operator of or a helper on a motor vehicle and failed to keep adequate records as required by law. The suit seeks to enjoin the firm from continuing the alleged violations.

FRATERNITY FACING PENALTY; 40 PLEDGES DUMPED ON ROAD

The Inter-fraternity Council at Washington University will impose "a severe penalty" on a fraternity which "kidnaped" 40 blindfolded "pledges" early yesterday and put them out of automobiles on lonely roads in St. Charles county.

Deputy sheriffs found one cold group of 28 youths shortly before dawn on a road six miles north of St. Charles, and another group of 12 on a road near Gilmore, 40 miles from home. Three automobiles were seen to speed away from the first group.

"We found on this kind of thing, and will apply severe discipline if we discover the offender and investigation bears out the reports," Marty Leaf, Inter-fraternity president, said.

"Pledges nowadays give blood and perform useful community services, and any behavior that smacks of old-fashioned hazing must be cracked down on."

which has been compiled over an 11-year period beginning in 1942, will be used only as a basis for beginning the check, Baum said.

All those listed may not still be operating as rooming houses and some may not come under the city's definition of a rooming house.

Baum said the Revised City Code defines rooming houses as places where five or more bedrooms are for rent, or 10 or more persons are lodged in less than five rooms. Rooming houses may have as many as 20 bedroom units.

Listings by the Rent Control Office not showing on city records will be turned over to Baum's department for further investigation. There are six inspectors assigned to rooming houses.

Baum said inspectors found a number of the changeovers to be in violation of the fire codes. Paperboard partitions were used by some rooming house operators. Drastic alterations had to be made before inspectors gave their approval.

THE REV. E. W. HAY FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN ROOM

Wife Says Pastor of First Congregational Church Was Cleaning Son's Target Rifle.

The Rev. Dr. Ellis Walker Hay, pastor of First Congregational Church of St. Louis, was found fatally shot today in the parsonage at 83 Arundel place, Clayton. A target rifle belonging to a son was beneath the body.

His wife told police she heard a shot in an upstairs bedroom a few moments after she had called him to breakfast and he had answered that he would be down shortly.

The body was in pajamas and Mrs. Hay was quoted as saying he had been cleaning the rifle, which Dr. Hay and his sons, David, 15 years old, and John, 11, occasionally used in target practice in the basement.

Mrs. Hay telephoned for an ambulance and, when it failed to arrive, called police who took the minister to St. Mary's Hospital. There was one bullet wound in the left side of the chest.

An inquest was set for 10 a.m. tomorrow.

The two sons had left for school when the shooting occurred. David is a student at Country Day School, John at De Mun elementary school.

Dr. Hay, 46 years old, had preached yesterday at the church, at 6510 Wydown boulevard, Clayton. He had been pastor since 1945 and before that was minister of First Congregational Church at Indianapolis for 13 years.

Dr. Hay was born in Roanoke, Va., and received his bachelor of arts degree in 1924 at Heidelberg College, Tiffin, O. He studied for the ministry at Princeton and Yale universities, receiving the degree of bachelor of divinity at Yale in 1927.

He was ordained in Toledo, O., in 1928 and was assistant minister of First Congregational Church there for three years before going to Indianapolis. He received the honorary degree of doctor of divinity from Defiance College, Defiance, O., shortly before coming to the St. Louis church.

3 KILLED IN CRASH OF NAVY PLANE ON WAY TO ST. LOUIS Craft From Air Station Here Hits Mountain Near Pittsburgh and Burns in Night.

Three Navy flyers—two reserve officers and a regular—returning from the East to the Naval Air Station at Lambert-St. Louis Field were killed last night when their airplane crashed into a mountain, about 40 miles east of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The dead were Lt. William G. Schaufler of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, office at McDonnell Aircraft Corp., at Lambert Field; Lt. Edmund J. Stulce, reservist, and a civilian employee at McDonnell, and Lt. (jg.) Arthur I. Rule of Malden, Mo., a reservist attached to a Cape Girardeau unit. All three were 29 years old.

The twin-engine Navy-owned Beechcraft in which they were riding, hit a mountain near New Paris, Pa., and burst into flames at 10:30 p.m., five minutes after the ship had radioed a Pittsburgh air field that it was landing to take on fuel.

A Navy spokesman said the craft apparently had started to descend through an overcast when the crash occurred.

Earlier in the evening the plane had taken off from Atlantic City, N.J., where the three men had flown from St. Louis Saturday morning on a routine training flight.

Capt. J. I. Bandy, commander of the Naval Air Station here, left by airplane for the accident scene.

What Happened to the Family Car?

Wally and Alice are our new neighbors next door, along with their two kids and Wally's mother. They moved in last Wednesday.

Naturally, we wanted to be friendly, so we asked them over Sunday night for some cassata. Wally and Alice came, but his mother stayed home with the kids.

Well, when Wally wasn't freezing the pack, he was chilling us with his efforts to make an impression. Seems that he's a purchasing agent, so he's got all kinds of contacts.

We didn't mind his apologizing for not buying in a better neighborhood. This was later on over coffee and cake. What got me was when he said, "Of course, we want to remodel, but I must get another car first."

"Oh, I mean a second car, Pete—one that Alice can use to get around in."

I asked him, "Wouldn't it be a lot cheaper just to leave your car at home for her, and ride the express bus?"

Wally gave me a "Please, not while I'm eating!" sort of look.

"No kidding, that express service is fast, direct and cheaper than what many drivers pay just to park. It beats parking the family car all day somewhere where the family can't use it."

Susie tried to change the subject by asking about Wally's mother. She has to use a cane. Alice said that's why they need a car at home; to take her to the doctor's all the time.

"Sure, that's how a car pays off," I said, "not driving to work and back, and you'd actually save money by leaving it at home for Alice to use." I showed him some figures our research gang had worked up on the subject.

Wally surprised me by showing an interest. "Maybe you've got a point there, at that. It's just that I've always driven to work—never thought of riding the bus down and back."

"Try it," I said as they were going. "You'll forget about that second car."

"You leave yours at home each day?" Wally asked me.

"You bet! It's a family car."

You know, I would've sworn I'd sold Wally on the idea, too. But when I called home today, Susie was pulling from having opened the garage doors. She'd loaned our car to Alice to take her mother-in-law to the doctor!

Killed in Crash on Mountain

LT. EDMUND STULCE

LT. WILLIAM SCHAUFLE

at 4 a.m. today to investigate the crash.

Schaufler is survived by his wife and two children, who live at East Greenwich, R.I.

Stulce, who had a wife and two children in Wellesley, Mass., had been living at 6038 Eaton road, Berkeley. He had been recently employed by McDonnell following release from active Navy duty.

Rule lived with his wife and two children at Malden Air Force Base, where he formerly was a civilian Air Force employee.

Schaufler, whose duties included testing of McDonnell-made jet planes before their acceptance by the Navy, had been stationed at the plant about a month. A native of Newark, N.J., he was a carrier pilot in the Pacific in World War II.

Stulce, who worked as an engineer for McDonnell, also was a flight pilot in the war, winning the Navy Cross in the Pacific.

ROUSED AT 6 A.M. BY SON'S SURPRISE CALL FROM KOREA

Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Andrew, 5779 Floy avenue, were fully awakened at 6:10 o'clock this morning by the sound of their son's voice calling by telephone from Seoul, Korea.

"I wondered who would be calling so early," Mrs. Andrew said. Her son, Pvt. Jean Andrew, explained it was evening in Seoul, which is 15 hours ahead of St. Louis time. Regular telephone service from Seoul to points in the United States was opened Wednesday.

A Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. spokesman said the call was relayed from Oakland, Calif., after being received by radio through co-operation with the International Telephone Exchange.

Pvt. Andrew, 21 years old, has been stationed with an Engineer construction battalion, south of Seoul, since September. He was drafted Jan. 28, 1952. A graduate of DeAndreis High School, he was employed as a clerk by the Washburn Railroad Co.

DEATH OF WOMAN BEING INVESTIGATED

Body Found in Garage, Auto Engine Running—Lip Split, Tooth Loose.

An investigation into the death of Mrs. Imogene Giblin, attractive divorcee whose body was found yesterday in her automobile in her garage, was being conducted today by East Side authorities.

Although a garden hose led from the exhaust pipe of the car into the front seat, police were puzzled by the fact Mrs. Giblin had a split lower lip and a lower tooth was knocked loose. Blood spots were found on the floor of the garage and in the driveway.

Mrs. Giblin's body was discovered at 8:30 a.m. yesterday when a motorist, passing her home at 23 Lakewood place, Centerville township, south of East St. Louis, saw what he thought was smoke rising from the garage.

The motorist, Dennis Blevins, 529 South Fifth-fifth street, Centerville township, investigated and found Mrs. Giblin in the front seat. The engine of her car was running and the windows were closed. Coroner C. C. Kane of St. Clair county said death apparently was caused by carbon monoxide poisoning.

Police were seeking a man with whom Mrs. Giblin was seen in a downtown East St. Louis tavern about 3 o'clock yesterday morning. She had left a tavern operated by her mother, Mrs. Mary Ryan, 6500 Missouri avenue, Centerville township, at 11 o'clock Saturday night.

Mrs. Ryan said her daughter telephoned her at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, saying she was at the Broadview Hotel in East St. Louis and was "OK." Shortly afterward, the mother drove to the Lakewood place home and, observing her daughter's car was not in the garage, returned to her own home.

Mrs. Giblin, who was 26 years old and had a 5-year-old son, Dennis, was described by her mother as having been "very happy." An office employee of a paint firm, she was divorced a week ago from Norman Giblin.

CONSERVATION DEPARTMENT SET UP BY OLIN INDUSTRIES

Establishment of a department of conservation in Olin Industries was announced today at the company's headquarters in East Alton.

Charles H. Hopkins will be director of the new department. John M. Olin, president, said Hopkins is being relieved of his former responsibilities as public relations director to devote all his time to his new duties.

The new department is being created because of the importance of natural resources in future planning of the company's business, Olin stated.

$31,000. The cut included rejection in full of a $24,000,000 request for payments to school districts in areas affected by federal activities. The committee said there are many cases in which federal funds have been going to school districts where it is obvious that local income could care for the situation.

INTERIOR DEPARTMENT: $376,000, a cut of $474,000, mainly in funds for health and safety work in the Bureau of Mines and in saline water research work.

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION: $326,934,000, a cut of $140,941,500. The cuts included $8,960,000 chopped from administrative funds and $131,058,000 from veterans readjustment benefits.

Complaint From Army. Meanwhile, the Army says its efforts to hold down the cost of the Korean war has delayed progress toward foolproof national defense.

Lt. Gen. A. C. McAuliffe, the Army's deputy chief of staff for operations, testified that funds were stretched as far as possible to finance the war from available money and to avoid asking Congress for extra appropriations.

As a result, he told a House Appropriations subcommittee, stocks of equipment have been reduced, with being replaced, and standards of operation and maintenance have been depressed.

This has saved money, McAuliffe said in testimony made public, but "has not improved our combat readiness position, however, and has further delayed progress toward achieving a proper state of mobilization readiness."

McAuliffe said major military equipment sent to Korea this year has not been replaced in the nation's stockpile because an estimate of the cost is to be included in a forthcoming military budget.

Personnel Costs Soar. The Army estimated its personnel costs alone would be $900,000,000 more than originally estimated. Other services were not asked for estimates by the committee.

Army officers said they had enough funds on hand to finance the Korean campaign through June 30, without asking Congress for more, unless fighting intensifies.

Korean war costs are not included in regular military budgets but are met through special appropriations.

Officers testified in support of requests for special appropriations totalling more than a billion dollars for the three services.

The Army estimated that over 80 per cent of its share of $788,000,000 was needed to finance bills voted by the last Congress to raise military pay and allowances, for mustering out pay and to give troops in Korea $45 monthly in combat pay.

The Navy requested $140,000,000 for personnel, the Marines $63,000,000 and the Air Force $167,000,000. They said most of this money also is for added pay voted by Congress.

An additional $11,700,000 was requested for civilian relief in Korea.

MRS. NELLIE GALTZSCH ESTATE INVENTORIED AT $248,900

Mrs. Nellie Galtzsch, 3900 Shreve avenue, a widow who died last Jan. 1, left an estate of more than $248,900, it was disclosed today with the filing of an inventory in Probate Court.

The 80-year-old woman, who lived a frugal life, held deeds of trust worth $61,500 and cash of $178,607, in addition to a one-sixth interest in the oil, gas and mineral rights in 1530 acres of land in Hamilton county, Ill. The mineral rights were not valued in the inventory.

In her will, she left $10,000 each and the mineral rights to two sisters, Mrs. Alice Breyer and Mrs. Effie R. Springmeyer. Bequests of $10,000 each also will go to two nephews, William T. Clarkson and Arthur R. Clarkson. In addition to several smaller bequests to friends and relatives, she will leave $5000 each to the Humane Society of Missouri and the Evangelical Children's Home, 8240 St. Charles road. The remainder of the estate was not disposed of by the will.

GETS YEAR AND DAY AS U.S. TAX EVADER

Illinois Sawmill Operator Also Fined $2500 in Court on East Side.

Earl W. Wellman, Red Bud (Ill.) sawmill operator, was sentenced to a year and a day in prison and fined $2500 today for income tax evasion. Sentence was imposed by United States District Judge Fred L. Wham in East St. Louis.

Wellman pleaded guilty a week ago to two counts of an indictment charging him with evading a total of $30,345 in taxes for 1946 and 1947.

His case was the first of its kind prosecuted in East St. Louis. Heretofore, such cases arising in southern Illinois were heard at Springfield, where the tax collection office is located.

United States Attorney William W. Hart cited instances in which Wellman sold lumber to distilleries and furniture dealers without reporting the income on his tax returns. The Government said the defendant had an income of $32,358 in 1946 and $17,553 in 1947 but reported only $9458 and $4668.

R. E. Costello, Wellman's attorney, told the court the defendant had been a farm boy in Arkansas and "didn't keep books like a man with a business education when he began making a lot of money all of a sudden."

Costello said Wellman did not wilfully evade taxes.

Judge Wham said the sawmill operator "made pursuit of the dollar" his chief objective, adding: "I'm inclined to think he didn't realize his earnings would be discovered."

New Sickness and Accident Benefits Include $25 Weekly Payment Feature Costs Only $12 a Year—Down Payment $2.50

Ages 60 to 69 Only $18 a Year

Ages 70 to 75 Only $24 a Year

The older you are, the harder it is to get protection against financial worries that come when accident or sickness strikes. That's why the reliable North American Accident Insurance Company of Chicago has issued a special policy for men or women up to 75 years of age. It helps meet sudden doctor and hospital bills—and the cost is only $12 a year for either men or women from 15 to 59 years old... only $18 a year from 60 to 69 years... from ages 70 to 75 only $24 a year. Easy payment plan if desired.

No doctor's examination required, merely your own statement as to your present health. If your policy is in effect at age 75, you may even continue it to age 80 at no further increase in premium. ABSOLUTELY NO REDUCTION IN BENEFITS REGARDLESS OF AGE. Protects you 24 hours a day.

This is the popular, sound "SERIES 500" Limited Accident and Sickness Policy which thousands of men and women are carrying, all over the country—it pays $25 a week for 10 weeks for total disability resulting from certain specified accidents and sicknesses; AN ADDITIONAL $25 A WEEK for 4 weeks from the first day of disability, for accidents requiring hospital confinement; up to $25 cash for doctor bills (at the rate of $3 per visit) even for a minor accident such as a cut finger. In case of accidental death the policy pays $1,000.00 cash to your beneficiary. Accident benefits effective from date of policy. Sickness benefits effective 30 days from date of policy.

In addition, the policy covers many sicknesses including pneumonia, cancer, diabetes, tuberculosis, polio, ulcer of stomach or intestines, and operation for removal of appendix, hemorrhoids, gall bladder, kidney and prostate, paying the weekly benefit after the first seven days of confinement to either home or hospital.

This new policy also has a double indemnity feature covering travel accidents. You receive $50 a week if disabled by an accident in a bus, taxicab, train, subway or street car, and $75 a week if the accident requires hospital confinement. The death benefit increases to $2,000.00 if caused by a travel accident.

Your benefits are never reduced even though you are insured in a Group Plan, Blue Cross or other Hospitalization Insurance. So if you are now a member of some worthy hospitalization plan, you still need this additional protection. Only a small percentage of people are confined to a hospital and even then only for a fraction of the time they are disabled. Most people—over 90%—are confined at home where hospitalization plans do not apply. Or, they are hospitalized for a few days or a week, then spend weeks of convalescence at home before they can go back to work again. The North American Policy pays specified benefits regardless of whether you are confined to your home or to a hospital.

North American Accident Insurance Company of Chicago has been in business for more than sixty-six years, and is one of the largest sickness and accident companies with assets of over $22,000,000.00. It has paid out many millions to grateful policyholders when they needed help most. North American is licensed by the Insurance Departments of all 48 States and the District of Columbia.

Whatever your age, whether you are young or old, male or female, you need this sensible, necessary protection. Get full details about this new policy by sending for the revealing booklet, "Cash or Sympathy." The booklet is absolutely free. It will be mailed without charge or obligation of any kind. CDA SAYS RUSSIA COULD SEND 400 PLANES TO HIT U.S.

Report Pictures 110,000 Casualties From Each A-Bomb—Plea to Step Up Defense.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP)

The Civil Defense Administration said today Russia could send 400 planes against any spot in the United States and drop numbers of atom bombs capable of inflicting 110,000 casualties with each blast.

Such an initial attack, the agency said, could be launched practically without warning, probably during working hours, and aimed primarily at crowded industrial areas.

It could be backed up by psychological warfare, to spread panic and weaken the will to fight, and biological warfare, to add disease to bombed-out devastation, the CDA added.

The agency's annual report was sent to President Eisenhower and Congress by acting administrator James J. Wadsworth. Eisenhower, in his State of the Union message, urged a stepped-up civil defense because he said there was no question Russia has the atomic bomb.

Wadsworth said in his report: "These initial civil defense attack assumptions are neither a dramatic overstatement of the problem nor a retreat from the reality of growing Soviet capabilities."

"We are making progress in civil defense but are losing ground in the face of the growing threat to our national security. Make no mistake about it, America's civil defense is not developing fast enough to meet the threat that now faces us."

The report quoted the Air Force as saying 70 per cent of an enemy bombing mission would get through the country's defenses.

The agency assumed 400 bombers could strike, with no more than 15 minutes' warning, if any, among the 67 areas it has designated as most likely targets.

Estimates of Casualties. The bombers, it said, are capable of carrying conventional bombs as well as atomic bombs two and one-half times as powerful as the one dropped on Hiroshima. In a daytime attack, it said, such A-bombs could kill or wound 110,000 persons, about half of whom eventually would recover.

Its primary task, the two-year-old agency said, is to alert every American family to the dangers of unpreparedness and to the need for a grass roots system of civil defense.

"The safety of the republic is everybody's business, not merely that of a few," it said. "Only when the people are told the full truth about the dangers they face will they be able to act to keep us free."

The report said nearly 2000 civil defense exercises conducted by cities and states in 1952 involved 2,000,000 civil defense workers and 42,000,000 private citizens. It said nearly 4,000,000 persons have now been assigned to civil defense duties.

LECTURE SERIES TO OPEN 'FESTIVAL OF PROGRESS'
The city's observance of the 150th anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase will begin with a series of five lectures in March sponsored and presented by St. Louis University, Mayor Joseph M. Darst announced today.

Entitled "The Louisiana Purchase—Greatest Real Estate Deal in History," the lectures will be given by members of the university's department of history. The first will be at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 2, and others will be on consecutive Mondays through March 6 at 3642 Lindell boulevard.

Gale P. Johnson, general chairman of the "Festival of Progress," termed the lectures "an encouraging stimulus to completion of final plans for the sesqui-centennial observance, which will reach its climax in 1954." The series is open to the public.

Found Alive by Embalmer 2 Hours After Being Pronounced Dead

Brooklyn Man, 80, Dies More Than 14 Hours After Family Physician Issues Death Certificate.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—An 80-year-old man was found alive in an embalming room yesterday two hours after the family doctor had issued a death certificate.

William C. Brosman of Brooklyn was taken to a hospital where he died early today, more than 14 hours after being pronounced dead.

The family physician, Dr. David Blumenfeld of Queens, had listed arterio-sclerotic heart disease, generalized arterio-sclerotic, and senility on the death certificate. Assistant District Attorney George E. Regan of Queens quoted the doctor as saying he found no heart beat, pulse or any other indication of life when he twice examined the patient thoroughly late yesterday morning.

After the death certificate was signed, Brosman was taken to the Queens undertaking establishment of Charles Morton and placed in an embalming room.

Morton and his aids noticed a flicker of the eyelids and an apparent slight exhalation. The undertakers wrapped Brosman in a blanket and called an ambulance. An ambulance doctor was able to restore breathing sufficiently to permit Brosman's removal to Wyckoff Heights Hospital, Brooklyn. There he was given shock treatment, oxygen and blood transfusions but failed to rally.

Issuance of a new death certificate will be up to the city medical examiner's office, a hospital spokesman said.

Relatives of Brosman, a retired clothing cutter, said Blumenfeld had been treating him for a considerable time and made long and careful examination before pronouncing him dead. Brosman, who retired from his trade 30 years ago, was ill for a long time.

Brosman lived with a niece, Mrs. Caroline Eberle, and her husband, Charles.

TAYLOR WOULD BE GLAD TO HAVE CHIANG'S TROOPS

Eighth Army Chief Says, However, Matter Is
One to Be Decided on Political Level.

By MAC R. JOHNSON

SEOUL, Feb. 16 — Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said yesterday he would welcome Chinese Nationalist troops on the Allied side in Korea. The new commander of the United States Eighth Army told his first press conference, however, that use of the Nationalists is a matter to be decided on the political level.

Gen. Taylor said the Eighth Army is ready to take on the Communists any time the enemy chooses to launch an offensive. "I can assure you," Taylor told newspaper men, "that the Eighth Army has nothing better than for him (the enemy) to try that. We are ready to take him on any time he comes."

The 51-year-old "jumping general" of World War II side-stepped a question as to whether a general Allied offensive could defeat the Reds now. Such an opinion was voiced by Gen. James A. Van Fleet last week before he departed from Korea and turned command of the Eighth Army over to Taylor.

Taylor said he thought enough had been said on the matter, and added, "if not, it will be." This apparently referred to the scheduled appearance of Van Fleet before a congressional committee early next month.

Taylor held his first press conference since assuming command last Wednesday at his headquarters. He opened the conference by reading a formal statement in which he called the Eighth Army a "formidable military force which has accomplished great things in the past and is capable of further achievements in the future."

Taylor reported "strong leadership and good morale" in the Allied troops and said he hopes to maintain the Eighth Army as an "effective military instrument capable of executing any operation which it may be called upon to perform."

Same Broom, New Handle. Answering questions later, he indicated there would be no sudden changes. He declared, "no new broom has arrived at the Eighth Army—just the same old anti-Communist duster with a new handle."

Taylor hinted he might try to harness the Reds with tricky maneuvers. He said the hills and valleys in Korea offer a great opportunity to an "ingenious and unorthodox" unit command, and said the same applied to the Eighth Army command.

He said he certainly would welcome increased military assistance from United Nations members, and added: "The more participation we have the more we affirm the determination of the free world to lick the Communist enemy."

On Feeding ROK Troops. Taylor said that South Korean troops are performing magnificently despite "austere" equipment. He said the question of rations for South Korean troops is under investigation. There have been well founded reports that South Korean troops are not receiving sufficient vegetables or high energy foods.

Taylor said the matter of rotation of troops also is receiving the closest attention but that he is not sure what is the answer to the problem.

He described the Eighth Army as the "best equipped" he had ever seen. In his tours of the front he could not detect any adverse effect on morale by the static nature of war, and declared that his commanders are striving to prevent "bunkitis."

He said his commanders are doing all possible to keep the troops "ready and capable of mobile warfare."

Asked whether Allied troops are anxious for an offensive, Taylor said, "no good soldier likes to sit it out in a war, and there are hundreds of thousands of good soldiers up on the front. And I know they have that same feeling, too."

Flashes of Life

By the Associated Press.

Identical-Twin Autos. PHILADELPHIA — Mel Headman parked his car near a downtown hotel, and went to work. When he returned the auto was gone.

With the help of police, he found that a hotel attendant had mistaken Headman's car for a guest's and had parked it inside the garage. Headman parked the car again and returned to his office.

Coming back the car again was missing. Police again confronted the hotel garage attendant. "Oh no, mister, this time I'm sure I didn't take your car," was the reply. "This time it was the automobile of one of the hotel patrons. Come and see for yourself." Sure enough—inside, was Headman's car.

The answer? The hotel patron had a green car. So did Headman. The cars were the same make, the same year and had identical keys for the door and ignition.

Baby-Sitting by Radio. JERSEYVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley have converted a walkie-talkie radio set into a baby sitter.

The Wesleys, operators of a grocery store here, have a microphone beside the crib of their six-month-old daughter, Patricia Ann.

Both work at their store, across the street from their home, as Patricia naps. As soon as she coos or cries, they pick it up on the radio system in the store and one of them goes to attend her.

FIREMAN INJURED IN CRASH ON CIVIL DEFENSE TEST RUN

Hose Truck on Way to Assembly Point in Preparedness Drill Collides
With Auto.

(Pictures in Everyday Magazine.)

Fireman Albert W. Wadsack, 6523 Winnebago street, suffered a severe head injury yesterday at Compton and Magnolia avenues when the hose truck he was driving collided with an automobile driven by Donald H. Cole, 6507 Hancock avenue, during a civil defense test.

Wadsack, alone in the truck, was making an emergency run from his fire house at 1304 South Eighteenth street to one of 12 points selected for assembling firefighting equipment in event of a threatened bombing attack. He was driving west in Magnolia. Cole was going north in Compton.

Cole, who said he had his windows closed and failed to hear the alarm, suffered cuts and bruises and was released after treatment at City Hospital. He was booked for careless driving and failing to yield right of way to an emergency vehicle.

The accident was the only untoward incident in what was described by Brig. Gen. (Retired) Francis E. Hardaway, acting Civil Defense Director, as a "highly successful" test of emergency procedures worked out by the Office of Civil Defense.

The 59 pieces of equipment, about half the city's firefighting facilities, were dispatched to the 12 dispersal points on the city's perimeter on a signal given by Fire Chief Walter Kammann over the fire alarm system at 7 a.m.

Within eight minutes, the last piece of equipment had reported its presence at the assigned point from which, in case of a real attack, it would have been dispatched to fight fires. The arrivals were plotted on a board at Civil Defense headquarters in the old Mounted Police Station in Forest Park.

Within one minute after all the vehicles had reported their arrivals, they were instructed by Chief Kammann to return to their stations. The order was sent over the Police Department's mobile radio transmitter which was parked at the Hampton Avenue Police Station.

It was received at each dispersal point by a battalion chief's radio-equipped automobile. The last piece of equipment was back at its downtown or midtown station by 7:25 a.m.

Present with Gen. Hardaway at the control point in Forest Park were Col. Malcolm Elliott and Frank Sullivan, civil defense executives; Fire Capt. Thomas L. Goffrey and Assistant Fire Chief Hugh Lyon, representatives of Chief Kammann, and Alderman Raymond Leisure, chairman of the aldermanic Civil Defense Committee.

Inspecting Bomb Damage

Son Said to Have Killed Father, Lived 9 Days in House With Body

MINEOLA, N.Y., Feb. 16 (AP)—A young pair, charged with killing the husband's father, a retired policeman, remained in the house with the body for nine days, police say.

Charles Starkins, 24 years old, and his wife, Ellen, 21, were arraigned yesterday on charges of first-degree murder in the killing of his father, Alvin, 62, on Jan. 26. The elder Starkins and his son allegedly argued about the son's reported inability to obtain steady employment.

The younger Starkins were arraigned after they were arrested in the pre-dawn hours at a hotel. Their five-month-old daughter was asleep in a bureau drawer.

Nassau county chief of detectives Stuyvesant Pinnell said both Starkins and his wife had signed written admissions after long questioning.

Police found the retired officer's body Saturday night in the basement of his home at Valley Stream, N.Y., on Long Island. The body was concealed under a pile of quilts in the basement. Neighbors had summoned police to search the house after missing Starkins.

Pinnell said young Starkins, who admitted quarreling frequently with his father, pretended to leave the house on Jan. 26, but instead hid in the basement and waited for the older man to go down to a work bench there. The victim was shot twice in the head by his son, who used a .22 caliber rifle. Young Starkins then clubbed him with a gun butt.

Quilts were dragged over the body, and the couple with their baby then continued to live in the house for nine days without attempting to dispose of the body. Finally they left the house, first visiting relatives, then going to the hotel.

Mrs. Starkins knew of her husband's plans, urged him not to go through with them, but did nothing to prevent the killing, officers said.

COURT-MARTIAL RESUMED DESPITE MYSTERY TELEGRAM

FORT MEADE, Md., Feb. 16 (AP)—The Government today declined to declare a mistrial in the court martial proceeding against Lt. Col. Melvin B. Voorhees because of a mysterious unsigned telegram addressed to the court.

The telegram, sent from Detroit, urged that Voorhees be acquitted on charges of disobeying a command and evading Army censorship. After receipt of the telegram, the presiding judge ordered a recess to determine whether Lt. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, commanding the Second Army, wished to have a new court consider the case.

U.S. OFFICER FOUND GUILTY OF $79,629 FRAUD IN GERMANY

Maj. Richard H. McKittrick of Peoria, Ill., Gets 5 Years for Coal-Buying Swindle.

BREMENHAVEN, Germany, Feb. 16 (AP)—A United States military court has found the former purchasing officer at this American Army port guilty of conspiring with German coal dealers in frauds costing the United States and German governments $79,629.

The officer, Maj. Richard H. McKittrick, 45 years old, of Peoria, Ill., was sentenced yesterday to five years' imprisonment and dismissal from the service.

Ending a 49-day trial—one of the longest in the history of United States courts-martial—the 12-officer court acquitted two other United States Army officers and an American civilian of conspiring with McKittrick. All four, however, were found guilty of dereliction of duty in permitting the frauds in the purchase of coal for the big port of embarkation in 1950 and 1951.

Lt. Col. Eugene M. Lill, 42, Mount Hope, Kan., was fined $1000 on four counts of negligent dereliction. He was acquitted of larceny, conspiracy and false swearing.

Maj. Harold E. Barr, Rutland, Mass., was sentenced to dismissal from the service on two counts of willful dereliction of duty. He was cleared of conspiracy, larceny and false swearing.

Paul A. Snyder, 40, Mansfield,

O., was sentenced to three years in prison. A former employee of the port engineer, Snyder was convicted of negligent dereliction of duty and two counts of making false statements under oath.

All the verdicts and sentences of the court are subject to review by higher authority. The accused were combat veterans of World War II.

Several Germans also are charged in connection with the coal frauds, including three who have fled to other countries. The Germans will be tried in German courts.

Illegal transactions involved more than 11,000 tons of coal purchased from German dealers for the military port here.

WOMAN WOUNDED IN ARM IN TARGET PRACTICE ACCIDENT

Mrs. Edward Woolen, 4931 Itaska street, was accidentally shot in the left arm yesterday when engaged in target practice with her husband and a cousin at Times Beach, St. Louis county.

Woolen told deputy sheriffs that the cousin, Miss Geraldine Smith, picked up a .22-caliber rifle, not knowing it was loaded, and accidentally discharged it.

Mrs. Woolen was taken to County Hospital for treatment and later was transferred to St. Anthony Hospital.

6 KILLED WHEN 'AMBULANCE ON WAY TO CRASH HITS AUTO

SIBSONVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 16 (UP)—Five persons were killed last night and four others were injured, two seriously, when an ambulance on the way to a highway accident struck an automobile carrying seven youths. All of the victims, passengers in the automobile, were between the ages of 14 and 20 years. Two were sisters, and another was believed to be their cousin. A witness said the car in which the youths were riding tried to pass a truck on a hill. When they saw the approaching ambulance's blinking red light and attempted to pull back into the right lane. They sideswiped the truck and the car veered across the road into the path of the speeding ambulance.

Truman Pamphlet to Key Aids On Mass Hysteria Disclosed

He Traced Pattern From Witchcraft to Klan When Near-Crisis Arose in Cabinet Over Red Smear.

By ROBERT G. NIXON
WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (NS)—Former President Truman, it was revealed today, was faced with a near-crisis in his Cabinet at the height of the congressional investigations into charges of Communism in government.

The then President wrote a special pamphlet on "witch-hunt" and "mass hysteria" in the United States when the crisis confronted him, and distributed it privately to his Cabinet members and key aides to reassure them.

A number of high officials who were accused by members of Congress of "condoning" Communists in their departments had talked of resigning. Feared Being Singled Out. Others expressed alarm to the President that, one by one, they might be singled out and subjected to what they regarded as "unwarranted attacks" and "character assassination," and raised the question of whether continued public service was worth it.

A copy of the secret and hitherto unpublished document has come into possession of International News Service, and was authenticated by the former President during his recent talks with him at his newly opened office in Kansas City. Pertinent parts of the presidential advice to his Cabinet officers are being made public with Truman's permission.

The presidential paper is entitled: "A Study of the 'Witch-Hunt' and 'Hysteria' in the United States." It covers periods of what Truman likes to call "witch-hunts" from the Salem, Mass., witchcraft persecutions in 1692, through the resurgence of the Ku Klux Klan after the first World War.

Cites Difficulties of Past. Specific chapters deal with "witchcraft in Salem, Mass., 1692," the "alien and sedition acts, 1798-1800," and "anti-masonry movement, 1826-1840," the "know-nothing movement, 1840-1856," the post civil war "reconstruction and the Ku Klux Klan, 1865-1877," and "post-World War I hysteria, 1919-1929."

In chapters of preface and conclusion, the former President told his jittery official family that, in his opinion, the wave of fear of Communist subversion in the post-second World War years has followed "a common pattern" with waves of hysteria of the past.

Truman told his Cabinet: "History is filled with examples of temporary mob excitement, stirred by false or exaggerated charges, resulting in injury to innocent people. On various occasions, mass hysteria has gripped the populace for temporary periods, resulting in a 'witch-hunt.'"

"There is a common pattern in this hysteria. Usually, it takes root in an atmosphere of war, severe economic crisis, or a threat of either; insecurity is a fruitful breeding ground for such a movement."

"Rights Thrown to Winds." "In such an atmosphere, demagogues or other unprincipled individuals can more easily stir up emotional and irrational fear."

"Charges are hurled indiscriminately to an extent that they are directed at palpably innocent individuals."

"Frequently, some of the precious civil rights for which men have fought for centuries to establish are thrown to the winds in the wild effort to make some of the charges stick."

"The demagogues play upon ignorance and superstition in an attempt to inflame mob excitement. In the name of a false type of 'patriotism,' individuals or ideas are attacked as 'foreign.'"

"Racial, religious, and class animosities are stirred up in an effort to add fuel to the flames."

"Frequently, smear attacks are directed against individuals who are the staunchest advocates of liberal and progressive principles; in this way, the opponents of principles endeavor to undermine public support to liberalism."

Guide to Future Movements. "This may furnish some clues to ways and means of identifying such movements in the future, as well as helping to treat these problems dispassionately and in

THOUSANDS ATTEND FUNERAL OF JEWISH OFFICIAL IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Feb. 16 (AP)—Thousands took part yesterday in the burial services for Col. Gen. Lev Mekhlis, Jewish member of the central committee of the Communist party, whose ashes following cremation were placed not far from Lenin's tomb in Red Square. The ceremonies tied up traffic in downtown Moscow, as whole streets were roped off. Many thousands paid their last tribute at the black-draped Hall of Columns, where the body had lain in state, and then trooped the quarter mile to Red Square behind a band playing a funeral march.

The Kremlin guns boomed a last salute to the former minister of state control who retired because of ill health in 1950. He died Friday of a heart attack, it was announced.

DENMARK DECIDES TO SPEED REPAYMENT OF U.S. LOANS

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 16 (AP)—The Ministry of Finance announced today Denmark has decided to speed up amortization of its pre-war United States loans with a repayment of $10,000,000 this year.

This is more than one-fourth of the total arrears during 1950, 1951 and 1952. Denmark paid annual installments of $6,000,000. The increased installment this year was made possible by Denmark's improved dollar situation, the ministry said.

The payment will wipe out last arrears of the $30,000,000 loan, of which the last installment fell due in 1942, shortly after the United States entered the war. After the war, Denmark was unable to resume repayment of the principal, but has paid the interest in full.

keeping with the spirit of our free institutions.

"Such... is vital at the present time, when the free peoples of the world have come to look to the United States as the champion of freedom and liberalism."

"Obviously, we must reject any move to foster totalitarianism upon us at home when we fight it abroad."

"If we wish to retain the confidence of free peoples, we must continue to set an example in our daily lives by deed as well as word."

"We must go on guard against those who would have us carry on a degenerating 'witch-hunt,' particularly in these critical times."

Here's How to Get Relief From Unsightly Dandruff

HANNIBAL, Mo.—Mrs. J. M. Riney, 116 Twentieth St., says: "I haven't been using Baker's Hair Tonic long, but I am ready to say there is nothing like it for the relief of dandruff and scalp discomfort. It's sold on a money-back guarantee. But I surely don't want my money back, and others who try Baker's will not want their money refunded. Instead they will tell their friends about the wonderful relief they have received."

For dandruff or scalp discomfort use Baker's Hair Tonic. For clean scalp and lustrous hair use Baker's Shampoo. Buy them where you trade. You'll like Baker's, or the makers will refund your money.

Investigation at Reforma-

By ROY F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 16 —
Col. Thomas E. Whitecotton, director of the State Department of Corrections, said today he was ordering an inquiry into alleged irregularities in operation of the State Intermediate Reformatory at Algoa.

He said he had called for the resignation of Gus J. Larrabee of Jefferson City, superintendent of the reformatory under the administration of former Gov. Forrest Smith.

Larrabee had agreed to submit his resignation, Whitecotton said, but asked that the effective date be made April 1. Whitecotton said this date had not been agreed on so far.

Larrabee told a Post-Dispatch reporter today he had changed his mind about submitting his resignation as of April 1 and was turning it over to Whitecotton to be effective March 1.

"I am going to get out as of March 1," he said. "My books are open. I'll welcome anything they may get on me just so they prove it on me."

Larrabee, formerly a bus and truck inspector for the Missouri Public Service Commission, said his job as superintendent of the reformatory was under the state merit system, but that he was going out.

"It does not look as if the merit system amounts to anything," he said.

Larrabee said he first learned his resignation was wanted when he called on director White cotton to congratulate him on his appointment last week.

Resignation Requested.

"I asked him if there was anything he wanted me to do," Larrabee said. "He replied he wanted my resignation."

"What's wrong?" I asked.
"He told me 'Everything is wrong out there at the reformatory,'" Larrabee said. "He said
'It's the worst condition I ever saw.'"

Larrabee said the formal resignation would be sent to White-cotton by tomorrow.

Prison Inquiry, Too.

The new penal director, appointed last week by Gov. Phil
M. Donnelly, said also he planned to make some inquiries into reported irregularities in operation of the state penitentiary in Jefferson City.

Asked if he planned any immediate changes in some of the top personnel of the penitentiary, Whitecotton said, "No comment at this time."

The inquiry at the Intermediate Reformatory, seven miles east of Jefferson City would include operations, accounts, food, the commissary, and reports of severe punishment of inmates, Whitecotton said.

One of the matters to be looked into, he said, were two reported "burglaries" in the reformatory commissary. On at least one occasion a sizable amount of money was stolen.

"You mean it was an inside job?" a reporter asked.
Whitecotton grinned. "Yes, I'd call it an inside job," he answered.

Food Diversion Alleged.

There have been reports, he said, of extensive manufacture of boats in the carpenter shop in the reformatory, and other reports of alleged diversion of food supplies to the use of officials.

Whitecotton, on leave as a captain of the State Highway Patrol to accept Donnelly's appointment as director of the penal institutions, held a similar position in Donnelly's first administration, 1945-1948. He succeeds B. Marvin Castled at head of the state's penal department.

Whitecotton said he had asked the patrol to assign a patrolman to him to aid in the inquiry in both the reformatory and the prison.

The inquiry at the prison,
Whitecotton said, would include general operation, accounts, the conduct of some of the shops, and some other matters I am not ready to discuss.

Potato Deal To Be Studied.

One phase of inquiry into food operations at the prison, he said, would include the purchasing of potatoes.

Whitecotton said he was looking into a report that the prison had sold a large quantity of potatoes to a Missouri wholesaler, who later sold some of the potatoes back to the penitentiary, at a profit, without being required to submit competitive bids through the state purchasing agent.

The prison sold the potatoes, it was said, because it lacked storage capacity for them, at a time when prison farm fields were threatened with Missouri river floods.

INJURIES FATAL TO MAN STRUCK BY STREETCAR

Robert Taylor, 2121 Cole street, died yesterday at Homer G. Philip Hospital of a skull fracture suffered when he was struck by a streetcar Thursday in the 2000 block of Franklin avenue.

streetcar, Aud Erwin, 5919A Lotus avenue, said Taylor, a Negro, 66 years old, walked into the path of the vehicle.

$700 Loot in Home Robbery.

Clothing worth $200 and jewelry valued at about $500 were stolen from the home of Orville Glick, 5928 Kennerly avenue, he reported yesterday. Police found a window had been forced to gain entrance.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—
Secretary of State John Foster
Dulles gets relaxation from affairs of state by washing dishes and scrubbing pots at his island retreat in Lake Ontario.

This revelation that may delight housewives but probably will upset husbands came on the CBS
"See It Now" television program on which the Secretary was interviewed by Edward R. Murrow.

"I get most of my relaxation at our island camp where I go with my wife," he told Murrow. "I do a lot of fishing and swimming and we do all our own work."

Dulles also went into the lighter side of his reading habits. He said he keeps a detective story by his bedside and generally reads it for 10 or 15 minutes to break contact with the day's business and get to sleep quickly. "I sleep like a log once I get to bed," he explained.

WILLIAM ELLINGTON

Hospital of Injuries suffered Saturday night on U.S. Highway 67 in an automobile accident about six miles south of Jerseyville, Ill. She lived in Milton, Ill.

Also injured in the accident and treated for head injuries at the hospital were her mother, Mrs. Clara Taylor, driver of the machine, and her brother-in-law, Gerald Newingham, of Milton.

Mrs. Taylor told police her automobile had developed mechanical trouble and was proceeding slowly when it was struck from behind by a car driven by Eplar Mills, an attorney from Virginia, Ill. Mills was treated for an injury of the shoulder.

Curtis Marchbanks Jr., 1820 LaSalle street, died last night at St. Louis County Hospital of injuries suffered Friday when the automobile in which he was riding collided head-on with a light truck on U.S. Highway 66, three miles west of Vandover road in St. Louis county.

Marchbanks, 16, was one of four passengers in an automobile driven by William Arena, 1098 Dolman street, which was going east in the three-lane highway at the time. Arena, one of his passengers, Mrs. Ella Mae Leslie, 1710 Hickory street, and the truck driver, George F. Lew of Springfield, O., were seriously injured.

Roy Burchfield, 11, who lives with his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Reese, at 5060 Arsenal street, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon in front of The Arena, 5600 Oakland avenue.

Witnesses said the boy alighted from a west-bound Forest Park avenue bus and ran around the front of the bus to cross Oakland. He was struck by a west-bound automobile driven by Theodore C. Rigden, 7237 Balcon avenue, University City. The boy was taken to City Hospital suffering from head injuries and a fractured left hip.

Robert R. Mueller, a railroad brakeman of Pacific, Mo., was in serious condition at St. Louis County Hospital from injuries suffered early yesterday when his automobile ran off the north side of U.S. Highway 66, two miles east of Lindbergh boulevard, and overturned.

State Highway Patrolmen said Mueller apparently was going west at the time. They said his machine struck the abutment of a bridge and ran into Gravois creek where it came to rest on its side in about three feet of water. He suffered head injuries and shock.

BOY FALLS FROM 2ND FLOOR

Howard Ross, 8 years old, was in serious condition at Homer G. Phillips Hospital today after suffering a fractured skull when he fell to a concrete sidewalk from a second-story window at his home, 2121 Cole street.

His foster mother, Mrs. Hattie Thompson, said the boy had threatened to run away and she ordered him upstairs. They are Negroes.

SANDWICH SHOP HELD UP

A sandwich shop at 3625 North Grand boulevard was robbed of $131 early today by a man who rifled the cash register after forcing an employee, Mrs. Anna Reel, to go into a back room.

Mrs. Reel, who lives at 1103 Angellea street, told police the robber, a Negro, showed a revolver.

STATE DEPARTMENT MISSING EMISSARY FOUND IN HOSPITAL

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch
KATONAH, N.Y., Feb. 16—State Department emissary Kenneth Newland, who is reported to have disappeared after his return on Feb. 6 from a mission in India, turned up in a sanitarium here. Dr. Charles Lambert, sanitarium head, said yesterday Newland was "all right and just needed a rest."

On leave to the State Department from Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., where he is a faculty member, Newland returned to this country from India on Feb. 6 on the Queen Mary. He had been in India studying the Point IV program.

After his return he disappeared and his wife in Columbia and the State Department received no word for him. Dr. Lambert said

ADLAI STEVENSON TO HAVE LUNCH WITH EISENHOWER

President Plans 'Little Chat' Tomorrow — 20 Congressmen to Attend.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson received and accepted today an invitation to lunch tomorrow with President Eisenhower.

Eisenhower also has invited about 20 Republican and Democratic Congress members to lunch in another of a series of get-acquainted luncheons he has been having.

However, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerly told reporters Stevenson would spend a half hour with the President before the luncheon.

Asked for the reason for Eisenhower's invitation to the man he defeated for the presidency last November, Hagerly replied: "Why, he just wanted to have a little chat with him."

Hagerly said that Stevenson was invited to call on the President some time ago, but the arrangement was left tentative until Stevenson's visit to Washington.

Planning World Tour. Stevenson is planning a world tour and, in that connection, arranged to pay visits this afternoon to the embassies of the Philippines, Indonesia, Japan and Korea.

Hagerly was asked whether Eisenhower would tell United States officials throughout the world to extend all courtesies to Stevenson when the former Illinois Governor shows up on his tour. Hagerly said he didn't know.

Stevenson plans to confer with Secretary of State Dulles tomorrow in preparation for the trip.

The State Department said Stevenson would be briefed by its top officials on countries he will visit.

Stevenson was reported to have met last night with Senator Russell (Dem.), Georgia, one of those who tried for the party nomination against him last year.

Russell did not attend a large reception given for Stevenson yesterday and a few eyebrows were lifted over that.

Stevenson was also reported to have had dinner last night with a group of Senators. He turned up this morning at Democratic National Committee headquarters, spent an hour with top staff members, then shook hands with all the workers and made a little speech.

Stevenson said the Democrats must take "a very active party position that is helpful and constructive," not only "in our own interest but in the interest of the country."

"We want to exploit to the advantage of the Democratic party all of the good will we have," he said.

Available for 1956. Stevenson apparently intends to keep himself available for the 1956 Democratic presidential nomination but to put no barrier in the path of any other potential candidate.

Asked at the reception yesterday for Democratic legislators if he would be running for office in 1956, Stevenson quipped: "I may be running for cover. But maybe that won't be necessary then."

He made it plain that he has no intention of opposing Senator Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, in the latter's expected bid for renomination in 1954.

"Douglas is a friend of mine and I wouldn't run against him under any circumstances," Stevenson declared.

Democrats who have sounded out his thinking on his political future say Stevenson gives every evidence that he would be happy if some other candidate came forward for the nomination in 1956. But these persons say he is realistic enough to believe that there is now no one in the party who can be regarded as a serious contender for the nomination, except himself.

Two Lions Get Loose at Circus; Unnerved, They Welcome Capture

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 16 (AP)—Two circus lions escaped from their cages during a matinee at the Auditorium and ran out into the street.

The crowd began to shriek but the lions, bewildered by the uproar and dazed by the traffic, found their way back into the Auditorium corridor to welcome recapture.

Lion trainer Pat Anthony was running through his wild animal act when his two young "bit players" dashed from the main cage and found their individual cages wide open, something not on the program.

The lions loped through the arena where they eyed the shrieking crowd cautiously but made no effort to leap into the spectator sections.

Instead they padded out an aisle to the outer corridor with Anthony, police, clowns, gaudily costumed shriners and curious spectators in pursuit.

In the corridor, lion No. 1 stopped and sniffed at Police Inspector Cliff Legg, sitting in a booth counting the take from program sales.

Legg was momentarily petrified. Then he snatched at his hip, only to find he hadn't worn his revolver for the off-duty chore. However his actions alarmed the lion, who moved on.

Lion No. 2 stopped in front of Mrs. Dick Burkhead, an intrepid woman, and peered at her with friendly golden eyes.

"I thought she was nice as could be," Mrs. Burkhead said later. "I patted her on the head."

Her husband was desperately trying to focus his camera on the scene when lion No. 1, rebuffed by the inspector, padded up to Mrs. Cleland Gann, also counting up the program sales take.

Mrs. Gann's piercing scream unnerved both Burkhead and the lions. When Mrs. Gann scrambled up onto a small wobbly table the lions pushed outside through a half-opened door.

They recoiled at the noisy flood of automobiles and busses along Main street.

Lion No. 1 raced halfway around the block-sized auditorium and re-entered through another door. Its section of the corridor was blocked off by a door slammed by an alert attendant.

Lion No. 2, after a befuddled look around, retreated back into the corridor and took refuge in a soft-drinks store room.

Anthony and his crew then arrived on the scene, rolling cages in front of them. It took little urging to entice both animals back behind bars.

Col. R. H. Morton, co-owner of the Hamill Morton circus, said there had been little danger. "Those lions are as gentle as spring lambs," he said.

STRIKE OF PAINTERS TIES UP H-BOMB PLANT CONSTRUCTION

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 16 (AP)—A strike of union painters today was reported to have practically halted construction on the big Savannah river plant of the Atomic Energy Commission. The hydrogen materials plant is in Aiken and Barnwell counties, South Carolina.

Pickets at several entrances to the project in Aiken county were turning back other union workers. First report said only office workers crossed the picket lines. There are 27,000 construction workers.

The cause of the strike was not learned immediately. Union officers in Aiken were not available for comment. Executives of the du Pont company, which has the contract for construction of the plant, indicated a statement would be issued later.

CAMPAIGN FOR NEW HOSPITAL BY BELLEVILLE PROTESTANTS

A 90-day drive to raise funds for a proposed 100-bed Belleville memorial hospital was announced yesterday by the Protestant Hospital Building Club, Inc., formed by a group of Belleville Protestant churches headed by St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed Church.

Cost of building and equipping the institution is estimated at $1,650,000. Campaigns in the last two years have raised $420,000 in cash and $140,000 in pledges. The group hopes to obtain $1,000,000 in pledges. The group hopes to obtain $1,000,000 in the new drive.

Belleville's only hospital now is the 120-bed St. Elizabeth's Hospital, a Catholic institution. It is being replaced by a 250-bed hospital now under construction at a cost estimated at $4,500,000.

BODY OF SOLDIER FOUND; NOTE LEFT IN AUTOMOBILE

Pvt. George Frederick Mason was found dead today, apparently of a self-inflicted bullet wound, in woods near Lucas-Hunt Village housing development in St. Louis county, where his father, Walter, lives at 5307 Gladstone avenue. A .22-caliber automatic pistol was near the body.

Members of his family were directed to the body by a note they found on the steering wheel of the family automobile, which Mason had used last night. The note indicated despondency over a love affair.

He was 20 years old and on leave from Fort Riley, Kan.

Patrolman John McCarthy was struck on the head with a brick yesterday by a robber he tried to capture as the thief emerged through the broken door of a tavern at 1401 Cole street.

McCarthy, who is 64 years old and attached to Carr Street Station, lives at 3505 Clay avenue. He was taken to City Hospital for treatment of head lacerations. His assailant, a Negro, escaped.

William McClain, owner of the tavern, said a juke box had been broken into and an undetermined amount of coins removed.

23 DIE IN RAIL CAR WRECK

COMODOR RIVADAVIA, Argentina, Feb. 16 (AP)—A diesel-powered rail car loaded with persons returning from a Sunday outing at the beach jumped the tracks near here last night and plunged over an embankment. Twenty-three persons were reported killed. Comodor Rivadavia is 900 miles southwest of Buenos Aires.

22 DIE IN TRAIN WRECK IN ITALY

Engineer, Says Brakes of Speeding Express Failed.

BENEVENTO, Italy, Feb. 16 (UP)—Twenty-two persons were killed and 80 injured yesterday when the Bari-Naples Express was derailed while traveling at 65 miles an hour.

The engineer, slightly injured, told police his brakes failed as he roared into the small station here shortly before dawn. He denied he was going excessively fast. The train was 12 minutes behind schedule.

Thirty of the injured were in serious condition and three of them were not expected to live. Seven cars were derailed and overturned. An eighth jumped the track and crashed into a wall on the station platform.

Raimondo Giovanni, director-general of Italian Railways, said the train should have slowed to 18 miles per hour before entering Benevento, but that a speedometer tape showed it had been going 65. He said the brakes had not yet been examined.

The engineer, Roberto Pittera, and his assistant, Nicola Ricciardi, were arrested and placed under guard in Benevento's hospital.

NEW CHURCH AND SCHOOL DEDICATED IN BERKELEY

The new $500,000 church and school buildings of Holy Ghost Parish at 6514 Garfield avenue, Berkeley, were dedicated in formal ceremonies yesterday. Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter spoke at an afternoon program.

Following the raising of the American flag on the school grounds, the parish buildings were opened for public inspection. Mayor Bill Bangert of Berkeley and other city officials, as well as representatives of other churches, attended the dedication.

REDS TONE DOWN ATTACKS AGAINST JEWS AS A RACE

East German Paper Says
'Real Enemies' Are Zionists With Anti-Socialist Convictions.

BERLIN, Feb. 16 (AP)—The Communists warned Soviet zone youth yesterday against racial hatred of all Jews. Zionists are the "real enemies," the 3,000,000 "Blue Shirts" were told in their newspaper, Junge Welt.

An editorial article said Communist measures against Jews actually are defensive steps to fight "American Zionists who seek to undermine socialism."

It was the second time in less than two weeks that the East German regime had found it necessary to qualify its anti-Jewish tones. Earlier, the party newspaper had said there are "good Jews."

The article said the Soviet and East German constitutions specifically forbid "racial hatred" and declared the American conviction and death sentence against atomic spies Ethel and Julius Rosenberg was "racial hatred." The Prague execution of eight Jewish Communist leaders last December, on the other hand, was described as the people "protecting themselves from Zionist and Israel machinations."

Arabs Also Are Semites. The Communists have found it necessary to make many careful distinctions in their campaign against Jews. They have avoided anything that would smack of the "anti-Semitism" because Arabs are a Semite people, too, and part of the Kremlin's aim is to woo the Arabs.

They have also avoided a general description of their new campaign as "anti-Jewish." Some Jews—including Lazarus M. Kaganovich of the Soviet presidium and Matyas Rakosi, the Communist boss of Hungary—remain in high posts.

The Communist propagandists, therefore, have centered their fire on the Zionists and prefer to have the new Kremlin campaign described as "anti-Zionism." Zion is a word used to describe Palestine and a Zionist, in the customary usage, is one who wants Jews to build a national home in Palestine.

Gotwald Quoted. The advice to German youth was to regard Jews in the light of their political convictions. The words of Czech President Klement Gotwald were used to illustrate the point.

"Naturally a former banker, a manufacturer or a property owner can be a member of the Communist party," Gotwald was quoted as having said. "In no case, however, can they be given leading positions."

To the remaining few East German Jews, this handwriting on the wall has been noted for weeks. Some 400 to 500 Jews out of an estimated 2000 have fled to West Berlin. In their trail came 1200 "part Jews" who feared the slightest ties or relationship would mean persecution, just as it did under Hitler.

The East German Communists have taken steps to prevent anyone fleeing to the West, the United States high commission newspaper said. According to the Neue Zeitung, Soviet zone officials ordered prosecution of persons trying to escape on charges of "sabotaging the reputation of the republic."

CONGRESSMAN JAVITS OFFERS TO RUN FOR NEW YORK MAYOR

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. NEW YORK, Feb. 16 — Rep. Jacob K. Javits, a forceful campaigner, announced yesterday he was "available" as a Republican candidate for mayor. He said that he was willing to run without liberal support if he is "really wanted" by the "forces of good government."

For the last six years Javits has been the congressman of the upper West Side's Twenty-first District, being elected as a Republican-Liberal in an otherwise predominantly democratic area.

Great Emotion Underlying Talks Of Rearmed Reich Helps Make Nation's Nationalism Dangerous

Europe's Fear of Germans as Partners Delays Treaties, Stirs Resentment—Blocking Program Is Vital to Russia, Whether by France or Bonn Is Not.

By DAVID M. NICHOL

The Chicago Daily News-Post Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright 1953. SECOND OF A SERIES.

BONN, Germany.

THE initial offering of the western world in the bidding for the future support of Germany was designed to be anything but attractive to the Germans.

The "Morgenthau plan" for making a "cow pasture" of Hitler's smashed Reich, was abandoned before the war ended, but the directives under which Gen. Eisenhower established the United States military government were only a little less severe and, as it turned out, only a little less unworkable.

Basic Allied policy was negative and encouraged at every turn, except for its predisposition to trade with the Soviet sphere. This aid and the fanatical devotion of the Germans themselves to hard work are the explanation of the "German miracle" of recovery which sometimes is oversold. The city of Cologne, for example, has 10 more years of rubble clearance at the present accelerated rate.

Political controls have disappeared less rapidly and the British action in picking up seven former Nazis in January was a sharp reminder that these controls still exist. But they have been watered down greatly until it is ridiculous to speak of returning to the definitions of the occupation statute if the defense agreements should not be ratified.

Allied Controls Near End. For better or for worse, the period of Allied control, once planned to last for decades, is very near its end. Something else, whether it be mutual defense arrangements or a dangerously unsatisfactory patchwork of bilateral agreements, will have to replace it.

From the moment that the full extent of the Soviet threat to Europe and the rest of the world became apparent in 1950, it has been equally plain that there could be no security in Europe or elsewhere without a substantial contribution from the Germans.

Instantly the ghosts of Germany's past, the hatreds and fears of centuries, rose to haunt the negotiations. For understandable reasons, no matter how they may be deplored, there is great emotional reluctance among European nations about accepting the Germans as full and equal partners.

Two Schools of Thought. Two schools appeared in Europe, ostensibly following similar policies but from vastly different motives. One genuinely favored the integration of Europe for the opportunity it would provide to all. The other saw "integration" as a means of maintaining a disguised check on Germany.

As a result some controls have been written into the "peace contract" and the defense agreements as they now exist. Germany, for example, will not be a full member of the North Atlantic Community although all its other five members in the defense of Europe, including Italy, a former "enemy," already have this membership.

Democratically inclined Germans, as well as those who aren't, bitterly resent these suggestions that Germany will have a second-class status. This growing resentment, plus a feeling that the land area of Western Germany would be sacrificed by Allied planners in the event of a Soviet attack, account for much of Germany's hesitation about the treaties.

"We have no desire to be liberated again," one of West Germany's military experts explains. At the same time the eagerness, particularly of the United States, to get this new army into being has inflated the importance of the German contribution in the eyes of many Germans themselves, and blinded them to the danger in which they live.

"Biologically and economically we may still be important in Europe," one of their own leading writers warns, "but in world politics we are a two-time loser, and at least a little provincial."

Threat of Rearmed Relief. The emotion which surrounds any talk of a "rearmed Germany" obscures another basic fact. Modern nations do not and cannot fight wars alone.

Gen. H. J. Kruls, former chief of the German military, said in a recent article in the "Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung" that the German military was "not a threat to anyone."

Nehru Deplores Non-Recognition Of Red Chinese

NEW DELHI, Feb. 16 (AP)

PRIME MINISTER NEHRU declared today that failure to recognize the Red Chinese government "was and is a fundamental breach of the spirit of the United Nations Charter."

Replying in debate on the presidential address in the upper chamber of Parliament, Nehru carefully avoided direct reference to the United States decision de-naturalizing Formosa, but said:

"Non-recognition of realities leads to artificial policies and programs."

"This has nothing to do with whether we like or do not like the policies of the Chinese Government. But it is extraordinary to act as if it did not exist and instead regard some small island off the coast of China as the real thing instead."

Refuses to Attack U.S. Nehru, who had been urged during the debate by various left-wing opposition groups, including Communists and non-Communists, to attack the "Asian fight Asians" policy widely attributed here to President Eisenhower, pointedly stated:

"We do not go about running down other countries even when we may think them wrong."

Nehru said the Indian Government has not yet decided its stand on Korean peace at the coming United Nations General Assembly session, "because so much depends on the circumstances which may develop in the next few weeks."

Earlier, Mme. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, Nehru's sister and head of India's United Nations delegation, told the lower chamber of Parliament about Communist charges that India's Korean peace plan put the country into the British-American bloc.

"Humanitarian Desire." "Our resolution was motivated by one desire—a humanitarian desire to end the killing in Korea," Mme. Pandit contended. "In the vote on our resolution it was heartening to see nations were not lining up on the basis of East and West or white and black, but rather with all those able to view the situation objectively and make an independent judgment on our side."

Peron Believed Trying to End Rift With U.S., Stalin Fighting Move

Diplomats Cite Argentine Dictator's Olive Branch to Eisenhower and Soviet Premier's Chat With Buenos Aires Envoy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)

AMERICAN diplomats have come to the conclusion that Argentina's strong man, President Juan Peron, is trying to patch up his quarrel with the United States—on his own terms. They also believe, they indicated in unofficial conversations, that Prime Minister Stalin of Russia is doing his best to thwart any such move.

Two recent events set diplomats to wondering. These were: 1. A "very friendly" interview granted by Stalin to Peron's new ambassador to Moscow Feb. 7.

2. A Peron radio chat last Wednesday night in which he held out an olive branch to the Eisenhower Administration and hinted his anti-United States campaign was being called off.

The significance of these moves was not immediately clear. At first diplomatic authorities here suggested Peron was launching a bold program for leadership in Latin America as an initial step. Just how far he would go in developing the Stalin opening was a serious question.

After days of study and checking, diplomats have now come to the conclusion that Peron is making a determined attempt to end his troubles with the United States and that Stalin would like to block it.

Argentine propaganda attacks on the United States, conducted through various government-dominated newspapers and organizations, principally the General Confederation of Labor (C.G.T.), have been so extreme they varied but little from the Communist brand.

Former President Truman was a favorite target, frequently denounced as a "puppet of Wall Street" and an interventionist for ordering American troops into Korea.

When Dwight D. Eisenhower was elected President, however, the news was hailed in the government-controlled press, and propaganda broadsides against the United States began to tone down.

Eisenhower, significantly, was never attacked. In addition, a C.G.T.-sponsored Latin American labor organization, set up in Mexico City last November, sought to remove a Communist tinge by sending a message of congratulations to Eisenhower on his election. Peron is understood to have had a hand in this. The organization, known as Atlas, was blessed by Vincente Lombardo Toledano, Mexican labor leader, apparently on his own initiative.

Some observers give as a reason for Peron's shift in strategy his belief that, as one general to another, he has good prospects for reaching an understanding with Eisenhower.

The first clear indication that Peron was intent on working out a settlement came about a month ago when he let pass a sharp

British Likely To Check EDC Decision to U.S.

May Seek Pledge of Troops for Continent After Request by France.

By JOSEPH NEWMAN

The New York Herald Tribune-Putnam Special Radio.

LONDON, Feb. 16. FRENCH officials left the British Government this weekend with a difficult decision to make, and London is now expected to put a similar decision up to Washington.

In view of Britain's refusal to join a European army, French Premier Rene Mayer and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault during their visit here last week asked Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden if they would do the next best thing—maintain a fixed number of British divisions in the European Continent for as long as the proposed European Defense Community requests them.

France, fearing that Germany will dominate a European army, wants these British troops to help counter-balance German forces, especially at the present when the Indochinese war is draining its resources.

Britain, however, is reluctant to give France a long-term commitment to maintain troops on the Continent without being able to recall them for possible use elsewhere at any time it sees fit.

British officials are also reluctant to reject the French request because if the French National Assembly refuses to ratify the EDC, there is apprehension that the French will try to shift the blame to the British.

Therefore, Britain is expected to ask President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles what they think about the French proposal and to let them know whether Washington would consider pledging a fixed number of American divisions to Europe for an indefinite period up to 30 years—the duration of the proposed EDC.

Both the United States and Britain now maintain occupation troops in Germany. However, they are free to withdraw them if they like after the peace agreement is signed with West Germany and a six-nation European army is established.

If Congress will commit American troops for an indefinite period to help put the European army plan through the National Assembly, then London may do likewise.

ALSO: Outlook for Sharp Tax Cut Dim, Despite Reed's Strong Stand

House May Record Vote for Reduction but Real Decision Remains to Be Made—Administration for Hard Money.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

IT is much too early for the unfortunate taxpayer to begin to count any unatched chickens. Despite the fact that the House of Representatives will certainly soon vote a handsome cut in income taxes, the outlook for any sharp tax reduction is actually growing dimmer. This is the sad conclusion to be drawn from the story of a recent important private meeting between Treasury and congressional leaders.

This dinner meeting took place a few days ago in an amicable atmosphere at Washington's Metropolitan Club. Those present included Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey, his principal subordinate, Chairman Daniel A. Reed (Rep.), New York, of the House Ways and Means Committee, and most of the Republican members of Reed's committee.

The purpose of the dinner was to discuss what Reed likes to call "my little bill."

This "little bill" moves forward the date of expiration of the post-Korea 11 per cent income tax increase from the end of this year to June 30. If Reed has his way, the tax loss will cost the Treasury more than a billion dollars this year, and upward of three billions the year after. Humphrey led off the discussion by describing the skeletons he had found in the Treasury closet.

In brief, something on the order of five billion dollars can perhaps be cut out of the Truman legacy of a 10-billion-dollar deficit, without impairing national security. This breaks down to a reduction of more than one billion in the civil section of the budget, perhaps two billion in foreign aid and possibly two and a half billion in defense spending.

As Humphrey pointed out to Reed and his House colleagues, this still leaves a very big deficit for the next fiscal year. And if Reed's bill becomes law, and the post-Korea excess profits, corporation, and excise taxes are allowed to die on present schedules, the deficit in fiscal 1955 is likely to be truly staggering.

This can hardly be a pleasant hearing to the Republican Congressmen. Every Republican in the House is under the heaviest pressure in history for tax reductions, and every Republican in the House is also aware that he must face the electorate again in 1954.

Reed made three main points at the dinner meeting. The excess profits tax, he pointed out, was due to expire on June 30. To ask

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Whole Hog or None

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
According to press reports, there has been considerable argument in the House of Representatives over the bill to open the list of old-age pensioners to the public. I see no objection to that, as everyone in the country knows who is receiving a pension.
I do object to members of the Legislature making the statement on the floor of the House that this bill will get rid of the chiselers.
While in the Legislature, I was known for my work in behalf of the old people, but I have always said that our way of administering old-age assistance tends to encourage people to be ornery and shiftless and not create anything for themselves. If they do that, they receive a pension without question.
If a person has really worked hard, raised a family, and done all in his power to make a good citizen, and suffers reverses in his old age, and perhaps has a small house, it is very difficult for him to qualify for a pension.
If he is forced to go and live with a child because of sickness or is unable to care for himself, then he is taken off the pension roll.
I have come to the conclusion that it is time to quit considering old-age pensioners as relief patients and give everyone a pension at the age of 65, if he wants it, and if that cannot be done, cut the whole thing out and make a real proposition out of all of it. Of course, then the chiselers will be the ones who administer the program.
Since I have been a party to our present set-up, I hesitate to say that I think the whole thing is a racket.
TOM A. SHOCKLEY
Waynesville, Mo.

About Time

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Congratulations on the stand you took in your editorial, "To Know Our Schools."
It's about time someone looked in the school instead of at it. If I were one of the parents of the school children I would be ashamed to admit that I entrust my child to be influenced by a staff that can be maintained on the salaries provided; or admit being so ignorant of what the schools are doing.
TEACHER.

Colleges Breed Conservatives

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The article, "The Colleges Under Attack," by Dr. Coburn in the Mirror of Public Opinion, was timely and much to the point. The more sane presentations of the issue we have, the better.
In something like a quarter of a century of association with college graduates as a minister in New York City, Boston, Holyoke, Mass., Albany, N.Y., and now Bloomington, Ill., I have observed that frequently young men and women who were ardent reformers in college soon change to rather conservative-minded workers and parents.
The plain fact is that once college graduates get out into the work of a world, establish families and own property, they become pretty conservative. And even on the college campuses the great majority of the students are pretty "regular." They are far more likely to be conformists than non-conformists.
KENNETH C. WALKER
Bloomington, Ill.

For Reason in Rent

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Tenants are just as interested in having the landlords pay a fair return on their investment, but we are in a squeeze because there is no place to move. Let's be reasonable, human and fair about this rental situation and condition in St. Louis. Who can afford $85 for an apartment?
A TENANT.

Behind the Second Front

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Red China has a highly disciplined regular army of 4,000,000 men. She also has police troops of more than a million, and home guards of about 13,000,000.
The Chinese Nationalists on Formosa have an army of about 700,000 men, half of them insufficiently equipped, without war experience and of dubious reliability. Nationalist guerrillas might surpass Chiang's troops in fighting spirit, but are restricted by their isolation and lack of real leadership. Worst of all, the Nationalists under Chiang Kai-shek have completely lost face.
It is ridiculous to consider raids or an invasion by the Nationalists as a serious threat to China or a help in the Korean war. If the Seventh Fleet had not protected Formosa in the first place this island, open to air attacks and other military operations, might have been in the hands of the Peiping Government a long time ago.
The chances for a break-up of Red China by the western powers are very slim. No government should think it can be done without setting the whole world on fire. A "second front" in China may sound glorious, but what of a second Dunkirk in China?
JOSEF A. BASCHINSKI.

First With the Least?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
There is one item that doesn't seem to be included in the Chamber of Commerce traffic plan. That is the installation of traffic lights downtown.
Chicago installed electric signals and barred all parking in the "Loop," more than 15 years ago. We still use the same manual system in use 30 years ago.
Of the eight hours traffic officers are on duty, they direct traffic only about five hours of that time. Motorists and pedestrians are on their own the rest of the time. St. Louis seems to always be the "first with the least," and last with the most.
J.C.B.

The New Opposition

It is doubtful if the first post-election address of any previous defeated presidential nominee of either party was awaited with the interest that surrounded the Jefferson-Jackson day dinner speech of Adlai E. Stevenson in New York.
Would the 1952 Democratic standard-bearer keep up to the high level of his campaign which developed him in a few weeks from a little known Middle Western Governor into a rare political leader who polled 27,000,000 votes?
Would he criticize a party which has been in office less than a month?
Would he employ his remarkable sense of humor to have some fun at the expense of an Administration which has been denied a honeymoon even by its own congressional leaders?
Would the man who had to give up his own office as Governor of Illinois in order to run for the presidency assume the paradoxical role of leader of the new opposition from his place in the ranks of private citizens?
The answer to every question is positive. Mr. Stevenson did keep up to the high level of political discussion which is synonymous with his name. He was not afraid to criticize but his criticism was in the best of case and tone. He delighted his audience with deft humor that must have amused even those at whom it was directed. And he showed conclusively that he has the grasp of the situation to be his party's effective spokesman in its role of the opposition.

Mr. Stevenson's concept of the opposition could hardly be improved on. It is not the blocking technique so widely practiced by the old opposition which now confronts "the novel experience of scrimmaging with reality." It is to fight the new Administration when wrong, but never to be content with mere opposition. The stakes in a world beset by Communist aggression are too great for the purely partisan approach which regularly characterized so much of the old opposition.
Speaking as a Democrat, Mr. Stevenson could say that members of both parties "wear the seamless garment of love of country. The Government is our Government as well as theirs." And so he wished President Eisenhower and his official family Godspeed in the trials ahead—ahead of them, this country and the entire world. The new administration by business men has his support and sympathy now, if for no other reason, because of the crises we all face together.
Secretary of State Dulles will do well to read that part of Mr. Stevenson's address which dealt with foreign affairs. For the speaker summarized so clearly the plight in which this country will find itself if our policy is such as to alienate our natural allies, whose good will, whose manpower, whose resources we need if our strength is to be collective and our security mutual.

Paying a deserved tribute to the foreign policies of the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations, he said: "These achievements are not accidental; they are the result of purposeful policy and of friendly persuasion. There is no room for the big stick or the ultimatum. Ours must be the role of the good neighbor, the good partner, the good friend—never the big bully."
But that part of the address which needs continuous reiteration in every city, town and village in the country is the call to a reaffirming of our historic belief in free expression and untrammelled conscience. In a passage that is worthy of the political sublimity of a Lincoln or a Jefferson, Mr. Stevenson said:
"Our family and factories may give us our living. But the Bill of Rights gives us our life. Whoever lays rough hands upon it lays rough hands on you and me. Whoever profanes its spirit diminishes our inheritance and beclouds our title to greatness as a people. If we win men's hearts throughout the world, it will not be because we are a big country but because we are a great country. Bigness is imposing. But greatness is enduring.
Only a government which fights for civil liberties and equal rights for its own people can stand for freedom in the rest of the world.
Only a people who can achieve the moral mastery of themselves can hope to win the moral leadership of others.
If this is to be the character and quality of the new opposition, the American people are fortunate indeed."

Rooming Houses and the Police

Director of Public Safety Myles P. Dyer says there may be as many as 2000 rooming houses in St. Louis operating without licenses. This means they are never inspected for fire hazards, and any one of them could very well turn out to be as much a fire trap as the Maple avenue establishment of Earl Blacksher in which four persons perished.
Why is there no inspection? Simply because City Hall is unable to determine which houses are residences and which are rooming houses unless the operators apply for a license. But this need not continue to be the case. Director Dyer is to be congratulated for taking prompt steps to make the necessary investigation, using policemen, firemen and building inspectors. Let it be a thorough one.

France Shows Her Fear

The French proposal of nine changes in the pending European army treaty reflects the desire of France to retain the largest possible measure of control over, any French troops which may eventually serve in the continental army. The French also want to have as strong a voice in the control of that army as any other participating power.
These French desires are considerably at variance with the original concept of the military implementation of the European Defense Community. That contemplated an integrated international army. It also contemplated participation in the control of this force by the various European governments in direct proportion to their manpower contributions.
To some, French reluctance seems hard to understand because the international army was a French idea. But it was suggested by Paris only as an alternative to the independent rearming of Germany. To the French, it has been the lesser of two evils, chiefly a price to be paid for American aid.
There are, of course, Frenchmen like Gen. Charles de Gaulle who want French soldiers never to obey any commands other than those of French officers, to sing no other tune than Allons, enfants de la Patrie. Other Frenchmen are convinced that only a united Europe can be a safe Europe, yet many of them fear that this united Europe may be dominated by a resurgent Germany. They consider the population and the resources beyond the Rhine, not to mention French overseas involvements such as those in Indochina and North Africa, and they begin to feel in the pits of their stomachs new twinges of their old, old fear. Eager as Washington is to see European defense achieved, only understanding can produce meaningful results. If the fear behind French reservations is not quieted, treaty ratifications will be written in question marks.

Cutting Across Ideologies

The world bank is a capitalistic institution and Tito's Yugoslavia is a Communist country. By the dogmas of Marxism they should be at each other's throats. Instead, the world bank has just made its third loan to Yugoslavia, and the industrial development thereby to be financed is expected to increase Yugoslavia's production by 30 per cent within two years.
Marxists would say that the Yugoslavs have ceased to be Communists by accepting loans from the capitalist world, and extremists in the capitalist countries would say that it is madness to finance development of a Communist country. They are both wrong. Yugoslavia continues to be the shining example of how the Western world can best hope to curtail the Kremlin's imperial power.
Tito broke with Moscow because his country refused to be exploited for Soviet Russia's benefit. He was able to break because he led a strongly based indigenous national movement. But if the Western world had given the Yugoslavs no alternative means of accomplishing their aims—no means of developing their own resources for their own free use without economic domination from outside—Tito could not have withstood the pressures concentrated on him by the Kremlin.
Because Tito could withstand these pressures, his break is now paying dividends for Western security. He has not given up being a Communist, nor abandoned his determination to build a socialist state. More important, however, he is joining Yugoslavia's onetime enemies, Greece and Turkey, in constructing a Balkan defense alliance that will buttress the Mediterranean end of the Atlantic alliance.
The lesson is plain. Ideological considerations should not be made the main test in determining whether a nation gets Western aid in its economic self-development. The test should be the nation's demonstrated willingness to run its own affairs without dictation from Moscow. On those terms, the West can offer what Moscow cannot—national freedom plus capital for a richer national life. That is a far more powerful magnet than ideological formulas if we can bring it to bear.

St. Louis Brings Up the Rear

St. Louis once was noted for being "last in the American League." Today the city is running at the rear of a much more important kind of race.
The city has spent less than any other of comparable size on major downtown building improvements since the war. Harry Wilensky's news report shows that Pittsburgh spent $132,500,000; Houston $70,000,000; Boston $68,000,000; Baltimore $50,000,000; and Kansas City $25,000,000. St. Louis has spent only $14,500,000 on its urban heart since 1945.
Fortunately the last few months have brought a civic awakening to the related problems of mass transportation and traffic and urban development. Now there must be determination to make the dirt fly. For seven long years St. Louis has been coasting along a route toward a city of no distinction.

McCarran's Costly Tantrum

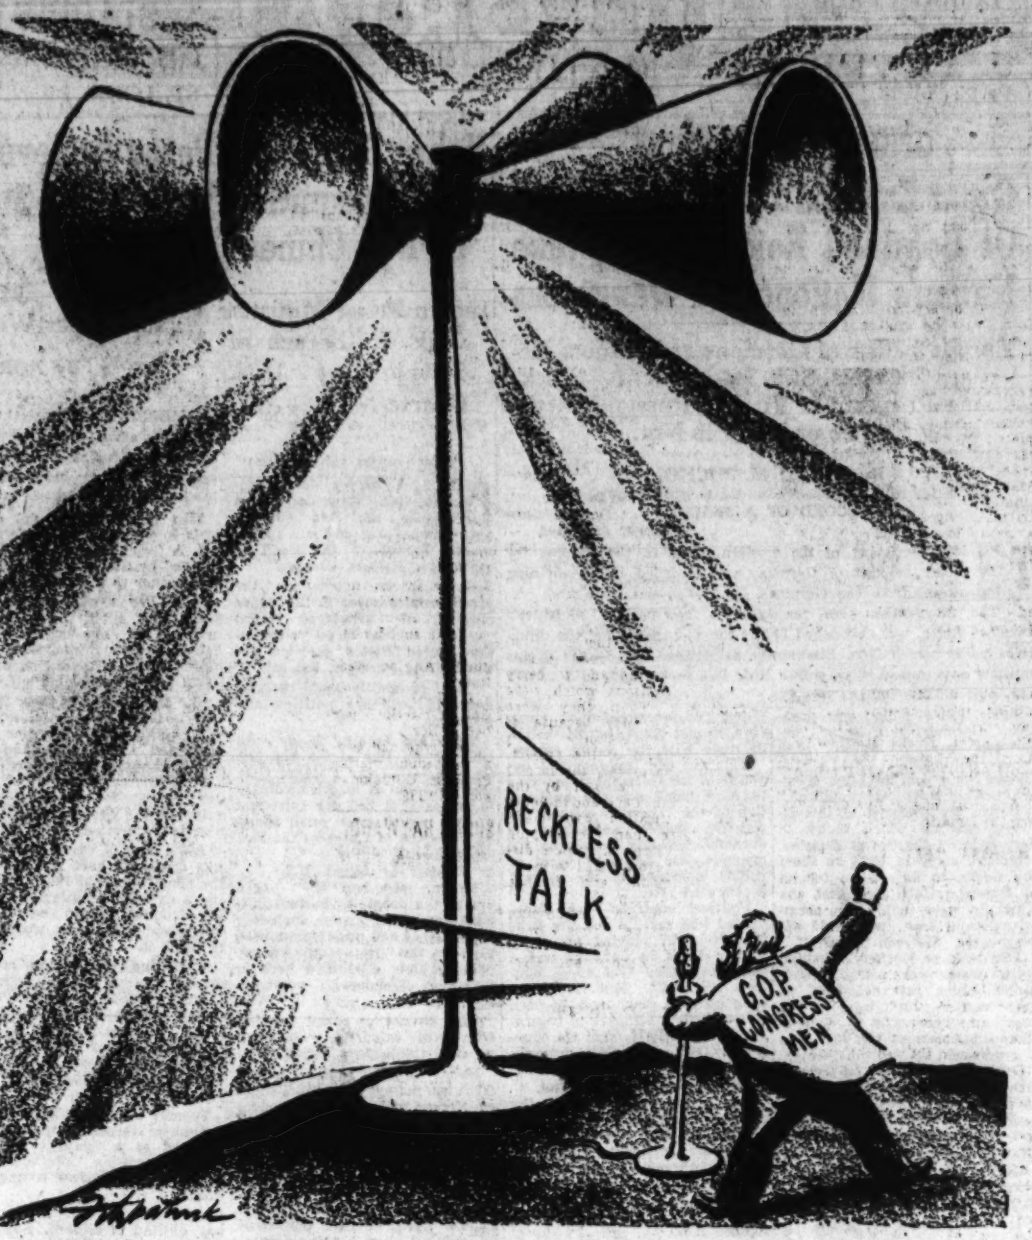

Senator McCarran's connections with the Las Vegas gambling casinos have long been known. He has admitted accepting free rooms and meals from the hotels when he visits his constituency. Naturally enough, when the famous Flamingo hotel was seeking a tax reduction, Senator McCarran went to bat for it at the Bureau of Internal Revenue.
Now this cozy friendship appears to have cost the partners some money. Last spring the Las Vegas Sun, which supported a McCarran foe in the senatorial primary, got under the senior Senator's hide with some derogatory remarks about him. Shortly thereafter the Las Vegas hotels yanked their advertising out of the Sun.
Hank M. Greenspun, publisher of the Sun, slapped a damage suit on both the hotels and McCarran. He charged that McCarran had threatened to cause gambling to be outlawed in Nevada unless the casinos boycotted the Sun. He called the boycott a conspiracy in restraint of trade and asked for damages. He not only won an injunction against the boycott, but has now won an out-of-court settlement from McCarran and friends said to approach $68,000.
That is quite a heavy price tag for a fit of political pique. But we would be willing to bet, if betting were not illegal, that the check was picked up by the casinos. And why not? The Kefauver committee described the Flamingo hotel as one of the nation's most profitable gangster-run gambling houses.

Program Notes on Old Cars

A composer whose music embraces sounds produced from old car parts is writing over the heads, we fear, of most automobile owners. Lou Harrison's "Canticle III for Percussion Orchestra," which will be played at a concert in the Museum of Modern Art Feb. 22, employs tire rims and brake drums (Mr. Harrison says old Studebaker and Ford brake drums are the most musical).
Mr. Harrison's old-car music simply does not seem apt to sound like the old-car music most people are used to. It seems esoteric. Why not some old-car music in a popular vein, for instance the ping-pong and wheeze of a gallant veteran making its way up a hill, the rattle of a door whose rattle has grown deep and rich with many openings and closings, the sharp report of a blowout in a tire that has gone round and round just once too often?
There would be old-car music that was old-car music.

An Interesting Appointment

President Eisenhower's appointment of Craig R. Sheaffer of Iowa as assistant secretary of commerce is interesting for two reasons.
First, Mr. Sheaffer, who heads a fountain pen concern, was a director of the Western Tax Council in 1951. The Western Tax Council is one of the organizations promoting the proposal for a 25 per cent limitation on income taxes, aptly known as the movement for tax relief for millionaires only.
Second, Mr. Sheaffer was one of the early contributors to Senator McCarthy's crusade against Communism. Shortly after McCarthy launched his Red hunt in 1950, Mr. Sheaffer wrote him a letter stating that he would be glad to send him $1000 if it would not embarrass him. Far from being embarrassed, the Senator replied that he did, in fact, have a certain number of expenses to meet, and Mr. Sheaffer promptly sent him a $1000 check.

The Business Man in Government Between Book Ends

He will have to lift his eyes from a company to a world, one of them says; must work for many bosses, see many people he doesn't want to, and lose much control over own time; above all, he must get along with Congress; but the inner rewards are rich.

Eric Johnston, Head of the Motion Picture Association, in The New York Times Magazine

Eric Johnston

Out of my experience as a business man in government, I would like to indicate a few of the parallels and a few of the differences between managing a private business and operating a government bureau.
It is true that success in business is no automatic assurance of success in government. But I think the qualities that have made a man a success in business should help to make him a success in government.
In government, as in business, we need the best possible management. It is in this vital area of management that business men have premium qualities to offer public service.
What will most of all determine his success—or his failure—as a public servant will be his own attitude, disposition and temperament.
In business, by the very nature of things, an executive is concerned primarily with his own business affairs. With the responsibilities of making a profit. There's nothing wrong with that. This is the way it should be in our profit-and-loss system.
In government, a man must lift his eyes above the narrow horizon and take a broader view.
From Threat to Caljory
In business, a man can be an extrovert or an introvert, accessible or seclusive, and still run a prosperous industrial operation. Not so in government. He must see people and have a flair for getting along with people. He must work where everything he does is out in the open, subject to constant pressures to make him change decision and actions.
He will also find plenty of persons trying to make up his mind for him—by threat, by cajolery, by wheedling.
In business, a man's day is largely his own. For the most part his affairs are orderly and ordered. He can see people or not, as he chooses. He can make up a schedule for a day or a week and be practically sure that he won't have to alter it very much.
Let him fry that in government. I did—at first.
Hardly before the day began the telephone would ring and I would have to dash over to a "crisis" meeting at the White House or at another Government department.
While I was still there my secretary would get through a message that a congressional committee, unexpectedly, wanted me to appear before it that morning—and I had better be on time!
No Clear-Cut Authority
In the meanwhile my office would be filled with frustrated and often angry visitors, muttering: "Who does that fellow Johnston think he is, anyway, keeping us waiting? No, we aren't going to be shoved off to some subordinate. We want to see him."
In the whirl in Washington you have to see people—lots of them—whether you like it or not.
The business man will soon learn that he has a lot more bosses in government than he ever had in business.
In business, the head of a corporation is principally responsible to his board of directors, probably consisting of not more than 10 to 12 persons.
This isn't true in government. The business man soon discovers that there is no clear-cut authority, from the President on down.
Organizational charts may appear to bestow independent and vast authority but in actual practice it doesn't work out that way.
There are always real and potent limitations on seemingly unlimited power. Instead of one board of directors, for instance, the government official has a whole constellation of bosses to deal with.

The principal group consists not of a handful but of the 531 members of the Senate and the House.
The Senate and the House have seemingly an endless number of committees and subcommittees.
Congressional committee members are in a position, especially by withholding authority or funds, to force their views on operational management.
All desiring to succeed in government must learn that the executive and legislative branches are co-equal.
Though having different constitutional functions and often at odds, they must and do find ways, through compromise and accommodation and personal relationships, to work together.
Smothered in Red Tape
The ability to get along with Congress, on a friendly and give-and-take basis, is a prime requisite to success for an administrator in Washington.
When an executive in business wants to reduce his administrative staff he fires the least efficient and keeps the most competent employees. There are no ifs, ands or buts about it.
When a government official tries to reduce staff, he finds that he is practically smothered in red tape.
A Cabinet officer once bemoaned to me that he set out to cut his staff.
Because of administrative regulations, such as those dealing with seniority and veterans' preference, he learned that he would have to let go of the ablest assistants and keep the very ones he wanted to be rid of—the least efficient.
There is plenty of room to squeeze out water. It can be done through co-ordination, consolidation of branches and activities and elimination of functions and personnel. Business executives are especially gifted to do this job. They have been doing it all their lives.
Skin of a Rhinoceros
Even if the business executive skillfully avoids all other snares, there is another trap, perhaps the sharpest of all, in his path.
In his own corporation he ordinarily leads a sheltered and protected life.
In government, he needs to develop a skin as thick as a dozen rhinoceroses against the cold and penetrating blast of criticism. Washington has some of the most expert needling and dead-cat hurlers extant.
Unused to the rough and tumble of politics, and sometimes feeling that by coming into government he is performing a public service that should be automatically appreciated, the business man may develop an oversensitiveness to criticism.
If he does that, he is licked before he starts. If he keeps a sense of humor—doesn't become a sourpuss—and learns to roll with the blow, he will have a far better chance to succeed.
Despite the bumps and the frustrations, the business man can find in government service one of the most rewarding and satisfying experiences of his life.
In our country we don't reward with titles, as in England, those who contribute notably in public or private life to the nation's welfare.
But we do have a way of compensating. We can earn the goodwill of the American people for serving in their behalf. There is no finer tribute or reward than that anywhere.

Satirical and Civilized

THE SECOND HAPPIEST DAY, by John Phillips. (Harcourt, 400 pp., $2.75.)

A generation ago America's gilded youths found their biographer and satirist in F. Scott Fitzgerald, who, until fate caught up with him, behaved as if he was one of them. He defined them in the titles of his novels: they belonged to "the Jazz Age," they were "the beautiful and the damned" and "all the sad young men."
We have had to wait a long time for a contemporary writer who would dissect the sins and daughters of the rich of our own day. He seems to have arrived, with the pseudonym of John Phillips.
Actually he is John P. Marquand Jr., whose father has satirized to everyone's satisfaction the older generation of New Englanders who might be the fathers and mothers of Mr. Phillips' youngsters in "The Second Happiest Day."

Phillips writes of a sober generation than Fitzgerald's, but underneath they have not greatly changed. They are still gilded youths who have gone to the best schools in the East and to Ivy League universities. Like all first-rate novels, the story emerges from its environment as well as its characters; in this case two young men, their families, the girls they are in love with, the scoundrels and adrifters who surround them.
One of them, Gus Taylor, lives with his Depression-impooverished uncle and aunt in an old Massachusetts town near a famous boys' school, which he enters by means of a scholarship. The other, George Warwick Marsh III, has everything offered him on a golden platter—a famous family, wealth and good looks. They go to Harvard, of course, and inevitably the Army finally gathers them in.

For a time Gus Taylor is in danger of becoming a third-rater, hanging onto the coat-tails of the young people who live in expensive New York apartments and mansions and spend their nights in feverish parties or celebrated night clubs. But something happens to George Marsh.

In the war he becomes a captain and something of a hero. Later, in J. P. Morgan's establishment, and then in stock-broking houses and small business enterprises in Texas, he is a complete failure. Gus, however, plods ahead. Using his Army severance pay to finish law school, he takes a trivial job in a law firm. And while George is in Texas, Gus inherits his fiancée — the beautiful Lily, who might have been Fitzgerald's heroine in "Tender Is the Night." It is more than an awkward situation; it is a catastrophe, which Mr. Phillips makes the most of.
The novel, as seen through the observing and disillusioned eyes of Gus, a young man who plays second fiddle to his hero, is often humorous and always entertaining. The fathers and mothers, uncles and aunts of the younger generation form a kind of elderly chorus around the flashing, spendthrift and somehow still sad young people.
"The Second Happiest Day" is a welcome addition to contemporary fiction. It is completely lacking in the shrill notes of despair, fear and loveless sex that have marked the work of most of our younger writers. It is civilized and pleasantly satirical, and beyond that it is a faithful study of the lives and habits of a generation of youths who have lacked a chronicler worthy of them.

WALTER LIPPMANN

New Administration Can't Rush Europe

WASHINGTON. "OUR CONCLUSION," said Mr. Dulles in his last speech, "was that the project for a European Defense Community was not dead but only sleeping... but we believe that there is a will to proceed." Why, we may ask, has the project been sleeping, and what is it that should be done to encourage the will to proceed?

It can be argued, I venture to think, that the project is sleeping—which means that it has not been ratified and made operative—because the necessary negotiations have never been completed. Mr. Dulles said in his speech that "last May the six continental countries... signed a treaty to create a European Defense Community... it was contemplated that the treaty could be made operative in six months."

What was contemplated last May was not Mr. Dulles's responsibility, and I make so bold as to say that any public official in Washington, in the State Department, the Pentagon or Congress, who contemplated that the treaty could be made operative in six months was misled by some very bad diplomatic reporting.

Germany Again a Power.

For anyone who was in Bonn and in Paris last May, and was willing to listen to what responsible and informed men said of the record, had full notice that the serious and official negotiations necessary to make the European army operative had not been carried through, and that they were being postponed until after the American election.

The reason the project has been sleeping is that it was meant to sleep during the American election and until a new Administration could take up the unresolved issues. This was so plain at the time that, in writing about the ceremony last May, I was merely reporting what virtually everyone involved in it knew and was saying privately—"the main thing that was agreed to at Bonn yesterday was the recognition of an accomplished fact—that Germany and even Western Germany, is again a great power in Europe."

Non-European Obligations.

One problem, or rather one large complex of problems, arises from the fact that "both France and Great Britain are so over-extended outside continental Europe that they cannot on present prospects, with the resources available to them, play the part they are supposed to play in NATO and with respect to the European army."

Unless radical measures are taken to restore French and British power in continental Europe, the Germans—who have no obligations outside Europe—will be predominant within the Western European system.

The other great problems, which were put to sleep last May, arise from the fact that Germany is partitioned, "disemboweled and castrated."

A European Defense Community can be set up on paper, it can even be begun experimentally.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Henry W. Dawson, street commissioner here since 1941, who died yesterday at his home of heart disease. He was 69 years old and lived at 5847 Highland avenue.

A member of the American Public Works Association, he was widely known in street paving and maintenance circles. He was a native of Okolona, Miss., and came here in 1904. He served the city for many years as supervisor of its asphalt plant prior to his appointment as street commissioner by the late Mayor William Dee Becker.

He was best known for his part in construction of a runway at Lambert St. Louis Airport, which employed a process for eliminating air pockets in concrete and thereby reducing vibration, and for the institution of "mat-coating" of asphalt streets here, a low-cost method of restoring worn-out thoroughfares.

Before his city employment, he worked for the Granite Bituminous Paving Co., 3943 Duncan avenue. He was a direct descendant of John Dawson, first colonial governor of North Carolina. He served as Republican city committeeman for the old Twenty-seventh Ward for 10 years.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Nellie Dawson, and a son, Dr. R. Burke Dawson, of New York City. Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. at Dreher-Harrell undertaking establishment, 1905 Union boulevard. Burial will be in Mount Lebanon cemetery.

ST. LOUISAN IN RADIO AUDITION

Robert McFerrin, baritone, a graduate of Summer High School here, will sing tonight at 7:30 o'clock on the Metropolitan Opera Audition program on Radio Station KXOK.

McFerrin now lives in New York. He is a former student of Wirt D. Walton, head of the music department of Stowe Teachers' College.

Newspaper Executive Dies. DETROIT, Feb. 16 (UPI)—James C. Montgomery, assistant general manager of the Detroit News, an independent newspaper, died Sunday after suffering a heart attack. He was 67 years old.

CLARK LEE, FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT, DIES

Pacific War Reporter Escaped From Corridor Shortly Before Its Fall.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif., Feb. 16 (AP)—Foreign correspondent Clark Lee died at his home here yesterday of a heart attack. He was 46 years old.

Lee and his wife, Liliuokalani, a Hawaiian princess, returned Dec. 23 from Spain, where he had been gathering material for a book.

Lee was the only United States correspondent on Bataan peninsula, in the Philippines, when the Japanese struck Luzon island early in the war. He escaped shortly before the fall of Corregidor to report later stages of the war for the Associated Press and the International News Service. Lee later covered the occupation of Japan. One of his stories resulted in his becoming a witness in the trial of Mrs. Iva Toguri d'Aquino, known as "Tokyo Rose."

In 1943 he published "They Call It Pacific," which became a best seller.

SUSAN HAYWARD, JOHN WAYNE WIN FILM POPULARITY POLL

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Feb. 16 (AP)—Susan Hayward and John Wayne today owned gold "Henriettes," symbolic of their selection as the world's most popular film stars of 1952.

The awards were made here Saturday night by the Foreign Press Association of Hollywood which conducted polls in newspapers in more than 30 countries. Stars of Tomorrow awards were given to Mary Murphy, Betty St. John, Dick Wesson, Barbara Ruick, Robert Wagner, Julie Adams and Dawn Addams. Special awards for promoting international goodwill were made to Betty Davis, Roy Rogers, Jimmy McHugh, child actress Susan Whitney, dance director Leroy Prinz, Olivia DeHavilland, Richard Burton, Jane Darwell and Masachi Nagata, producer of the Japanese hit "Rashomon."

Pictures honored as international favorites were "Hans Christian Andersen," "Greatest Show on Earth," "High Noon" and "It's a Big Country."

GEORGE A. VIERHELLER DIES, COUSIN OF ZOO DIRECTOR

George A. Vierheller, who retired 11 years ago after 60 years as a teller for the First National Bank and its predecessors, died of a heart ailment last night at St. Joseph's Hill Infirmary, Eureka. He was 91 years old.

Mr. Vierheller recently had lived at the home of his son, I. T. Vierheller, 5020 Creighton drive. Born in Belleville, he began as a clerk for the old German Savings Institution in 1881. He was a cousin of St. Louis Zoo Director George F. Vierheller.

MERLE OBERON TO APPLY FOR AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 16 (UP)—Australian-born film actress Merle Oberon has decided to apply for American citizenship.

The dark-haired actress, who returned to Hollywood from Europe only a month ago, said yesterday, "On the eve of resuming my American motion picture career, I have come to the conclusion that I want something more than just an American film career. I want to become an American citizen."

$14,150,000 GIVEN JEWISH AID

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 16 (AP)—Jewish leaders from 125 cities donated $14,500,000 yesterday to start the United Jewish Appeal on its annual drive for funds to aid the Jews of Europe.

The pledges were made at the annual conference launching the drive. The goal this year is $144,524,250.

High School Students of Different Races, Creeds Stress Progress in Understanding in St. Louis.

The importance of closer understanding between different racial, religious and national groups was emphasized in a program of speaking, songs, and pagentry yesterday at the first meeting of Brotherhood Week at City Art Museum.

Principal speakers, representing the three major faiths, were the Rev. Allen Hackett, president of the St. Louis Ministerial Alliance; the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S.J., president of St. Louis University; and Rabbi A. E. Halpern of B'nai Amoona congregation.

High school students of various races and creeds offered brief but unanimous testimony that the ideal of brotherhood is progressing well among young people of St. Louis.

The Rev. Mr. Hackett, addressing about 600 persons who gathered under sponsorship of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, said the problem of getting along with one's neighbors should be approached joyfully and without tension.

Father Reinert quoted utterances of the recent Popes affirming the need for brotherhood of man. Christ chose his disciples from among those who loved one another, and John warned that a man who did not love his neighbor could not love God, the universal.

August B. Bremerich Dies; Clerk in the Circuit Court

Funeral services for August B. Bremerich, clerk in the circuit court, will be Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. at St. Bernard's Catholic Church, 731 Hawk avenue, with burial in Calvary cemetery. He was 53 years old and died yesterday of cancer at St. John's Hospital.

Mr. Bremerich lived at 4153 Gratiot street and was active in the Seventeenth Ward Democratic organization. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ann Bremerich; two brothers, the Rev. Joseph A. Bremerich, pastor of the Holy Family Catholic Church, and William J. Bremerich, and a sister, Miss Marie Bremerich.

2310 VISIT EXHIBIT OF FRENCH MASTERS AT ART MUSEUM

A total of 2310 persons visited City Art Museum yesterday, where the touring exhibition of French masters' drawings has attracted large crowds in its one-month stay ending tonight.

The museum will be open today from 2:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Museum officials said the largest attendance for the exhibition was 2450 on Jan. 25.

G.I. MORALITY IS HIGH IN KOREA, BISHOP SAYS

If People at Home Gave Proportionately There Wouldn't Be Any Poverty.

By ROBERT EUNSON

TOKYO, Feb. 16 (AP)—American soldiers in Korea "have the highest morality of any group of people in the world," the Right Rev. Austin Pardue, Episcopal Bishop of Pittsburgh, said today.

"Morality is fundamentally charity," Bishop Pardue said in an interview. "If the American people at home gave proportionately, there wouldn't be any poverty or want."

He said "there are 65 orphanages in the Seoul district alone operated by boys in the Air Force and ground force."

Pious didn't have anything to do with morality, Bishop Pardue said.

"I saw pinups aplenty and why anybody would get worried about pinups is beyond me. I even saw them in chaplains' offices."

"We are dealing with men, away from home. You have to look at pinups just the way they do, with a sense of humor."

"The time to worry is when there are no pinups and no gripes. There are no pinups and no gripes. There are no pinups and no gripes. There are no pinups and no gripes."

"There is a greatness among our men in Korea," he said. "I mean it's a generosity, a willingness to give."

"Great heroism is taken as a matter of course, but in addition they find time to help the Korean people. Time and time again I heard American soldiers say, 'We don't know how lucky we are at home.'"

WIFE HAS A COLD, PRESIDENT AND BROTHER GO TO CHURCH

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—President Eisenhower braved a rainy morning yesterday to attend services at the National Presbyterian Church with Mrs. Eisenhower, who joined three weeks ago.

The President heard Dr. James A. Jones, guest minister of Charlotte, N.C., declare that there was "something religious in the founding of this nation."

Dr. Jones said "the house of faith is not built along the road of life to accommodate overnight guests but is there to live in."

Mrs. Eisenhower, who has been suffering with a cold, did not accompany the President, who attended services with his brother, Milton.

THOMAS L. STOKES

G.O.P. Embarrassed by Tax-Cut Pledge

WASHINGTON. TAXES ALWAYS MEAN trouble for politicians. But the current dilemma among Republicans over whether to cut taxes now or wait until the budget more closely approaches a balance has become more than ordinary trouble for the Eisenhower Administration.

The headache was somewhat self-induced by lavish promises during the campaign by Republican orators that tax reduction would be an early order of business if the party was returned to power.

All that has been promised now, because one Republican took the promise seriously. That, we know, is the one man who is in the right place.

Representative Daniel A. Reed of New York, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which initiates tax legislation, said:

He stirred up all the fuss and confusion, it is recalled, because as soon as Congress met, and several days before President Eisenhower was inducted into office, he introduced his tax reduction measure.

The Ways and Means Committee, following Reed's wishes, has now approved a 10 per cent income tax cut by a vote of 21-10-4. If the bill becomes law a cut of 5 per cent will be effective July 1 and another 5 per cent next Jan. 1.

Eisenhower's Policy.

The bill would provide a reduction of about 5 per cent in this calendar year and 10 per cent thereafter, in normal income taxes affecting some 50,000,000 taxpayers.

It would end on June 30, six months ahead of time, the 10 per cent normal tax increase voted two years ago by the Democrats. Otherwise, the increase would expire automatically December 31.

Bluff Dan Reed's enthusiasm is not shared by the Eisenhower Administration. Its policy, spelled out by the President in his message to Congress, is that tax reduction should await a scaling down of Government expenses and an approach to a balanced budget.

This policy was the result of a study of the budget-tax picture made by advance liaison men who came here several weeks before the inauguration, including Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge. They discovered very soon that the situation was not so simple as it sounded from the campaign stump last summer and fall.

Backed by Martin.

They cautioned a delay in tax reduction until expenses could be trimmed, and trimming expenses was found not to be so easy because of commitments already made by the previous Truman Administration, especially for the defense program.

In his position for delay in tax reduction, President Eisenhower was backed up by Speaker of the House Joseph W. Martin and party aides.

But big Dan Reed, a formidable gentleman, physically and otherwise, and stubbornly, was not moved one whit. He kept insisting he was going through with his plans. Furthermore, he executed a strategic maneuver on his own.

This was a dinner meeting he arranged with Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and other

LOWER TREND DEVELOPS IN STOCKS AFTER HIGHER NOTE

Uncertainties Over the Tax Situation Poise Unsettling Element for Share Trade.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (AP)—The stock market gave ground today after starting on a higher note. The close found a wide mixture of gains and losses with the emphasis plainly on the downside. Virtually all price changes were fractional with the exception of a few higher priced railroads that lost between 1 and 2 points at times.

Trading was slow throughout the session. Business amounted to 1,330,000 shares, that compares with 1,350,000 shares traded Friday.

(Dow-Jones Industrial stock average lost 43 of a point and rail dropped .68, while utility gained .08.)

Of 113 issues traded, against 113 last Friday, 470 closed lower, 383 higher, 302 unchanged. There were 29 new highs for 1952-53 and 13 new lows.

The market started steady and then gained slightly through the list with enough persistence to send the general level higher.

About midway of the day, a swing in the other direction started with railroads losing ground.

The market appeared to ignore the continuation of lifting of price and other economic controls. A cautious eye was kept on the tug of war in Washington over whether to cut taxes before spending is reduced.

Du Pont gained fractionally after the company reported 1953 earnings equal to $4.70 a share as against $4.64 a share in profits the previous year.

Higher were Santa Fe, Sinclair Oil, Dow Chemical, Consolidated Natural Gas and Goodrich.

Lower were Union Pacific, United Air Lines, U. S. Gypsum and Bethlehem Steel.

A block of 6500 shares of General Telephone sold at 36 1/2, off 1/2.

Pan American World Airways was active in blocks as large as 3600 shares, mostly at a small fractional advance.

Business World

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (AP)—The P. H. Rouse Co. and Co., Inc. declared a dividend of 85 cents a share on common stock, payable March 14 to record Feb. 24. The 1952 earnings were $4.70 a share of which $3.07 was derived from operating activities and $1.63 from General Motors dividends. In 1951, the company reported earnings $4.64, of which $3.01 was from operating activities.

Cotton textile market was quiet Monday. There were further checkings on print cloths and wide industrial fabrics for the second quarter.

St. Louis Public Service Co. stock sold at a record high price of 132 1/2, a point and 1/2 point above the Midwest Stock Exchange Monday. Utilities showed the better tone on the "Big Board."

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. reported record sales and income for 1952, and anticipated them greatly to a fourth quarter surge in domestic business. The sales totaled $1,138,403,608, compared with $1,011,141,392 in 1951. Net income was $39,009,866 or $5.30 a share on common stock now outstanding, against $36,828,296 or $7.75 a share in 1951.

Output of the nation's steel mills this week is scheduled at record-equaling levels, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported. The Institute estimated production would total 2,250,000 tons of ingots and steel for casting, with operations at 99.7 per cent of rated capacity. In both tonnage and operating rate, these figures equal the highest in the industry ever attained—a mark set first in 1946 and again in the week of Jan. 19, and equaled again last week.

DUST STORM IN WHEAT COUNTRY BOOSTS PRICES

CHICAGO, Feb. 16 (AP)—Wheat prices in grain markets on the Board of Trade today were boosted by reports of a dust storm in the Midwest which is expected to cut wheat harvests in some areas.

The weekend brought winds up to 80 mph in parts of the Midwest, but with dust falling in some areas, this has been known to cause dust storms because of lack of snow cover. Traders did not rush to what at the start of the week, however.

FEDERAL RESERVE OPPOSES NEW CURB ON CREDIT BUYING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—A Federal Reserve Board spokesman said last night there was "some pressure" for re-establishing curbs on credit buying but the board was opposed to any such move.

An over-expansion of consumer credit already has taken place, he explained, and putting the brakes on installment buying would do no good.

He said regulation W under which the Federal Reserve Board limited credit purchasing had been unpopular both with business and buyers and was a headache to enforce.

The spokesman said some people felt rising installment credit was getting out of hand but the board did not agree with this view of the high national income.

Asked if there was any sentiment for bringing back regulation X, which limited credit buying on housing, the spokesman said "there is none." This regulation was dropped last September.

BUTTER, EGGS AND POULTRY

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 16 (AP)—The local market for butter, eggs and poultry was quiet today, with prices generally steady.

Butter prices were steady at 24 1/2 cents per pound for standard butter, and 24 1/4 cents for extra standard butter.

Egg prices were steady at 44 cents per dozen for large eggs, and 43 cents for medium eggs.

Poultry prices were steady, with chickens at 12 1/2 cents per pound, and turkeys at 18 cents per pound.

Prices for various grades of poultry were also steady, with some minor fluctuations in the higher priced grades.

The market for live poultry was also quiet, with prices generally steady for various breeds.

IRANIAN TROOPS FIGHT TRIBESMEN IN OIL FIELDS

Rebels Led by Cousin of Queen—Sought to Seize Grain From Peasants.

TEHRAN, Feb. 16 (UP)—Iranian troops fought fiercely today with mountain tribesmen led by a cousin of Queen Soraya, consort of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi. The government forces were led by a nephew of the tribesmen's leader.

Dispatches from the scene, in the southwestern Iranian oil fields area, said 42 tribesmen and 18 tribesmen had been killed so far. The tribesmen captured 30 troops in the first phase of the battle, and 20 tribesmen surrendered to army forces.

Tribal leader Abolghasem Bakhtiari, cousin of the queen, started the trouble by attempting to seize stocks of grain from peasants in the oil area of Masjed Suleiman.

The tribesmen fought back fiercely when troops were sent to stop the raids.

Three army columns, under Col. Teymour Bakhtiari, nephew of the tribal leader, were sent to the scene.

At last word, the battle was still in progress. The troops were attacking the tribesmen with artillery as well as rifles.

Deputy Premier Hossein Fazelani announced here the government would take stern measures to smash the revolt. He said the army has warned the tribesmen they will be liable to execution unless they surrender.

TWO-STEP SPELLING
"HORS" FOR A HORSE

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP)—A simplified-spelling bill published in the House of Commons today would permit children to spell
"horse" as "hors," if it comes more naturally than the "e," and
"wun" would be all right for
"one."

But they couldn't go on like that forever. They would be expected to shift to conventional spelling as soon as they are able to learn it.

The measure would direct the Minister of Education to conduct a practical, seven-year experiment in methods designed to make reading easier. It is sponsored by members of Parliament I. J. Pitman, grandson of the inventor of the Pitman shorthand system, and Dr. Mont Follick, campaigner for make spelling sensible.

The bill, due to be voted upon on Feb. 27, would not try to reform the spelling of adults. Children taking part in the experiment would be taught the sound of letters, and then encouraged to spell it as they hear it, the sounds remaining unchanged.

SIX ARE BELIEVED KILLED IN AUSTRIAN AVALANCHES

VIENNA, Feb. 16 (AP)—Weekend avalanches in Austria have believed today to have caused six deaths. Thirty-seven persons have died in avalanches in this country this winter.

Rescue squads found the bodies of a German soldier, Christoph Vermann, of Hamburg, and an Austrian who were buried in an avalanche on the Venetian in the Tyrol. Two other Austrians were buried in the same avalanche. A search is continuing for their bodies.

Two Austrian vacationists were killed by an avalanche in the mountains of the Nockgebiet in southern Austria Saturday.

Capital Capers

Eisenhower's Aids Dodging the Parties

By Elise Morrow

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.

THUS far at least, the leading lights of the Eisenhower Administration have given Washington's famous cocktail party circuit the brush-off.

MRS. NIXON

Go to a big reception on Embassy Row these days and you're lucky if you see anybody from the executive branch of the Government except an Assistant Secretary of State who has to be there. The same situation applies to almost any other kind of Capital party you can think of.

It's not that the members of the President's official family aren't being invited; very much to the contrary. The town is swarming with hostesses, official and unofficial, who are dying to bag the new crop of Republican social lions. Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Robert Anderson, for example, have been invited to at least three parties for every day they have been in Washington, and this is a reliable index to what has been happening to other Administration officials.

But the nation's new leaders are just too busy—and in some cases too astute politically—to get themselves caught up on the martini merry-go-round. Moreover, and more to the point, the word has been passed on quietly from the White House that President Eisenhower himself will cast a cold eye on any partying by his officials beyond the call of official duty.

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield showed up at a cocktail party in the Carlton Hotel with Mrs. Summerfield, given in honor of the president of the National Broadcasting Co., but beyond that, so far as the butterfly set is concerned, the Eisenhower Cabinet has been virtually invisible.

THE AFOREMENTIONED Secretary of the Navy has attended parties honoring Adm. Arthur A. Radford, Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet, and Mrs. Radford, and the Army Chief of Staff and Mrs. J. Lawton Collins gave a reception in honor of the new Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Robert T. Stevens.

But Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, bereft of his General Motors stock and faced with problems second only to those of President Eisenhower, is socially among the missing. Perhaps it is just as well; he doesn't have to listen to the current Washington cocktail party gag that goes something like this:

"Tell me, is it true that you have to sell all your Government bonds before you can go to work for General Motors?"

A DINNER-DANCE was given at the Army-Navy Country Club in honor of Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, Treasurer of the United States, but Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey is sticking to the office well into the evening—too busy counting the Fort Knox gold, presumably.

The Nixons are getting around to some extent, but ex-Vice President Alben W. Barkley is more on view than Dick and Pat. The former Veep was spotted the other day, for example, dining in the Mayflower Lounge, a veritable hotbed of social life hereabouts, known with more or less affection as "The Snake Pit."

THIS IS NOT TO SUGGEST, however, that the social whirl in Washington has slowed down appreciably. The diplomatic set, for one, is extremely busy in this department. A celebration at the Korean Embassy, of the Ambassador's birthday and the wedding anniversary of the Ambassador and his wife, produced such scenes as the Chinese Ambassador's wife dancing the hula, and the Australian Ambassador singing "Waltzing Matilda."

Several hundred showed up at the Embassy of Ceylon to join Ambassador Sir Claude Corea in a celebration of Ceylon's fifth anniversary—much curry in the buffet—and the Embassy of Thailand threw a party in honor of a visiting military mission from Siam.

Princess Margaretha of Denmark, a cousin of the King of Sweden, was feted in Scandinavian circles during a visit to Washington; the British have had several small-scale social events; so have the Spanish and the Greeks. Japanese Ambassador Eiichi Araki gave a dinner in honor of Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, and the Icelandic Minister and his wife gave the first of two dinner parties.

MME. HERMAN VAN ROIJEN, whose husband is The Netherlands Ambassador to Washington, reports that the Dutch Embassy has been receiving telephone calls from all over the United States—from people anxious to help the Hollanders in their fight back from the disaster caused by the overflowing of the storm-tossed North Sea.

One woman telephoned for information as to where she should send $1690 worth of blankets. Convents reported the Sisters were praying for the flood victims. A man calling from Toledo said he wanted to help because the Dutch hid him from the Nazis during World War II. All the callers were informed that, by now, the flood victims have all the clothing, food, medicine, etc. that they need, but that cash contributions toward rehabilitation work will be much appreciated.

Automobile suspended between light standard and Fire Department hose wagon with which it collided at Compton and Magnolia avenues yesterday when fire truck was taking part in civil defense drill. Fireman Albert W. Wadsack, 6523 Winnebago street, suffered a severe head injury and Donald H. Cole, 6307 Hancock avenue, driver of the car, suffered cuts and bruises. The fire truck was among 59 pieces of equipment involved in a dispersal test and dispatched to 12 points selected for assembling fire-fighting units in event of a bombing. The accident was the only untoward incident of the drill. Below, Brig. Gen. Francis P. Wrangell Joe, now 3 years old, was shipped to St. Louis from his native Alaska when 2 months old and apparently doesn't miss the Far North at all. As current Dog of the Week at the Humane Society Shelter, the husky is up for adoption and, society officials say, he has proved a good family pet through long acquaintanceship with children and a liking for pampering that has been his lot since puppyhood. Applications should be made at the shelter, 1210 Macklind avenue.

The Voice Of Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

ANNE JEFFREYS has a fascinating habit which entrances everyone backstage when she's in a show. She always washes her nylon stockings right on her legs and leaves them there to dry. . . . Unlike many a vigorous older, 80-year-old Adolph Zukor observes no health rule hanky panky. Zukor, who is chairman of the board of Paramount Pictures (and invariably beats everybody to the office every morning by showing up at eight) smokes at least half a box of $3 cigars every day of his lively life.

LILLI PALMER is absolutely punctilious about keeping appointments, but Rex Harrison has to be reminded and reminded and then usually is late. . . . Tallulah Bankhead is completely taken with stage and screen favorites of yesterday, even though the public may consider them hopeless Has Beens. She pays them the most reverent kind of homage, and all the affectionate respect she discards in favor of affectionate insult when she's dealing with contemporary greats.

BETTY HUTTON is that practically unheard of thing—a woman who dresses according to the weather. She ignores the calendar entirely; she'll wear pink pique in Manhattan in October, or brown velvet in Beverly Hills in May if the weather man eggs her on. . . . At the risk of being considered the Benedict Arnold of the acting profession, Laurence Olivier openly opposes the theory that the show must go on and on as long as the box office is taking in loot. Larry, operating on his firm conviction that long runs result in deep runs, frequently has posted closing notices backstage while the S.R.O. sign was hanging out front.

GUY LOMBARDO, currently in Florida, is really on vacation—all the way. He refused to come to the phone even to speak to his press agent, which may kill a national magazine story (and the press agent). . . . A definite—and exciting—possibility for next fall is a Broadway musical version of the old play, "The Barker," with lyrics by Howard Dietz, music by Arthur Schwartz, and Joan Blondell in the female lead.

Facing Problems

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

PROBABLY the first disillusionment that comes after the honeymoon, and after the moonlight and roses have faded, is the thumping realization of both parties to the contract that the other is not the perfect creature that peopled the rosy dream of the romance.

Horrible thought! This marriage is not different from a million others. The parties to it are human beings, with all sorts of faults. The smooth ride to a heaven on earth develops ruts and bumps. Holding hands in the garden, dancing cheek-to-cheek, planning the perfect future together—who would have thought that problems—real, tough problems—would rear their ugly heads?

WELL, THEY ALWAYS DO. The difference between success and failure in marriage does not hinge on luck in avoiding problems. It depends upon the attitude taken by husband and wife toward the inevitable friction, the disappointments and the rough going that attends every marriage. Solid people solve these problems; the unstable try to run away from them.

Mrs. W. has encountered some problems and doesn't quite know what to do about them. She writes: "You offer to suggest a marriage counselor to people who need one, but I live way out in the country and I know there isn't one within a hundred miles. Anyway, the only car we have is a truck and my husband keeps it busy. I don't know what to do about my troubles with my husband—really I suppose they are no worse than those of a lot of other people go through, but they're getting me down and I want to get rid of them."

"I have tried talking them over with my husband, but that simply irritates him. He asks me if I don't know when I'm well off, and stalks out of the room. I need some new techniques. Are you enough of a mind reader to suggest any to me at this distance, Dr. Popenoe?"

I CERTAINLY AM NOT, Mrs. W. since you don't even say what your troubles are. But I can make a few suggestions that will apply to every marriage.

1. Start by taking stock and see whether you are doing your full share, Mrs. W. Are you putting into the marriage everything that your husband has a right to expect from you? Are you giving him intelligent companionship, emotional security, good management of the home, and a normal sex life? If not, go to work on yourself.

2. Then pick out one thing at a time to work on in your marriage. Experts have decided that the most common topics of agreement and disagreement are (a) handling family finances, (b) recreation, (c) religion, (d) demonstration of affection, (e) friends, (f) sexual relations, (g) caring for the baby, (h) table manners, (i) conventionalities, (j) philosophy of life, and (k) ways of dealing with in-laws. Pick out any one and do something about it.

3. Recognize that you can get rid of any fault only by putting something better in its place.

4. Admit to yourself that there will be a few things that can't possibly be changed. Make up your mind to accept these without grouching or resentment.

5. Balance each of the bad points on which you are working by picking out some good point in your marriage and working on it still harder. You'll be surprised to find how soon this policy will change the whole balance of your marriage.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

THE question of showing hospitality in a friend's house is the subject of this letter: "My husband and I have been very close friends of a man and his wife for many years. His wife passed away about six months ago. Since her passing, we stop in to see him at least once a week. One evening, while we were visiting him, another couple came in. We were having a drink when they arrived, and after we sat talking awhile I asked them if they would like a drink as I think the husband had overlooked the fact that they didn't have any. My husband says I was very much out of order to offer anything in anyone's else's house. As there was no hostess and we are a very informal group, I see no harm in what I did. Will you please tell me if I was wrong?"

I'm sorry, but I do think it would have been better to have reminded the host that he had forgotten to offer them anything.

DEAR MRS. POST: My husband and I have just moved into our new house. Many of our friends do not know our present address. Will you please tell me the simplest and best way of notifying them of this?

Answer: Your double visiting card with your new address engraved on it and a written message such as, "We hope you will come to see us soon," would be the best way.

Temper Fits Must Not Be Tolerated

By Angelo Patri

WHAT are parents to do with a child, or about a child, who calls them names, strikes and kicks them? I do not go along with the people who say, "Oh, he is only a baby. He will outgrow it." I am not so sure he will.

To begin with, I would like to know how the child got the idea that such behavior would be tolerated. Children of a family whose good manners are usual, all treating each other with courtesy, are not likely to fly into temper. So, family background must have something to do with it.

BUT, SUPPOSE a well brought up child surprises his father and mother with an outburst of abuse—a temper tantrum. It should not be condoned. Isolate that child, put him apart in the quiet of a vacant room where he has no audience. Say as little as possible, merely a word or two of disapproval. Tell him that when he behaves, he can come out again. If he continues to yell, pay no attention.

Once I heard of a small girl, who had been treated this way, sitting before the mirror watching her hair, trying, with her finger, to draw them down further on her cheeks. She was absorbed in this for a few minutes, until the tears dried, then she started yelling loudly again. But she wearily soon went to sleep.

When the child is quiet, tell him that his behavior was bad; that everybody feels bad sometimes but they should control their tempers; that tantrums are always punishable. Treated that way, the exhibitions of temper cease, but it often takes some time.

THE CHILD who strikes a parent is usually one who has been slapped early and often. Children believe that what grown people do is the right thing for them to do, not having any understanding of their bonds to their parents. They slap them as they would slap their contemporaries, and as they have been slapped. Again, this behavior is likely to be a reflection of what they have experienced.

To train a child to be understanding of good manners, we have to demonstrate the idea every day in every way. To teach a child the necessity for good manners and courtesy toward others, to teach him self-control, we must give him a constant example.

But a tantrum is not to be overlooked with the idea the child will outgrow the idea. He needs to be taught that it will never be overlooked.

How It Started
By Jean Newton
"Example is Better than Precept."
OUR readers will be in accord with the correspondent who suggests that this old proverb, "Example is better than precept," is as valid today as when our grandmothers preached it to our parents. Nay, the effectiveness of "Do as I do" over "Do as I say" is as true today as it has been in the more than 600 years of this saying's service to the generations' grandmothers.

This is an aphorism with a rich history in the literature of our mother tongue. As much as any saying on the record, it has inspired writers to virtuosity on their own account. We find a modern author saying: "Then can be more easily led than driven; example is better than precept." Two hundred years earlier, another celebrated writer put it, "Example draws where precept falls; and sermons are less read than tales."

Almost 400 years ago the same idea took this form: "One example is more valuable than 20 precepts written in books."

And in its first appearance on the written record, this proverbial wisdom was credited to St. Austin. A manuscript whose inscription is placed at about the year 1400, which one of the antiquarian societies in Britain has preserved, contains the following lines transcribed into quite readable Middle English: "Then say the Seynt Austyn that an ensampull yn doynys ys mor commendabull then ys techynge other prechynge."

Designing Woman A Come and Go Closet

By Elizabeth Hillyer

THE problem of not enough closets is a tough one. Here is an idea for an extra closet that can come into a room without remodeling it and go out without permanent damage.

This closet puts up a handsome front and doesn't have too expensive an inside story. The shelf unit takes no fancy cabinet work to build and is demountable to go along on the next move.

Set it against the wall so that space between it and the corner will carry a long enough hanging pole and perhaps a hat shelf and shoe rack.

Top off the whole thing with a narrow wood facing and a double rod, the inner one traverses style to swing concealing draperies open and closed.

Secrets of Charm How to Be Graceful

HOW DOES A MAN JUDGE A WOMAN'S GRACE? TOP DESIGNERS TELL YOU WHAT THEY SEE IN MODELS DISPLAYING FASHIONS.

IS there a man who does not appreciate grace in a woman? We have never met one. But talk to a designer of feminine fashions, who only sees his creations come to life when modeled by a feminine creature of grace—ah, then this appreciation becomes articulate in the highest degree!

As Mr. R. said, "A proud carriage of the head is the keynote of grace that I look for in a good model. She looks skyward—she is never earthbound, and everything she wears takes on a lifted, out-of-this-world look."

ALSO CONSIDER the comment of Mr. M., another designer and employer of models: "To display my designs, I like a girl who walks without a ripple—steady in the hips and shoulders. Even when her clothes do not fit perfectly, they look as though they do. But a wiggler causes wrinkles to form in even the best-fitted costume."

Does that suggest a mode of action to you?

According to Mr. C: "Give me the beauty who's light on her feet. A clunking heel sounds bad, looks worse and jolts and jiggles the body with every awkward step. The impression it gives is one of unpleasant aggressiveness and a lack of poise. Naturally the distinction of the finest gown is lost in such a display and it looks devastatingly run of the mill." Says Mr. B.: "In choosing a model, I watch the hands and arms. They must be relaxed in nature curves or destruction of body lines—and those of the costume—follows. Stuff, limp, hip-perched or pendulum swung arms are the arch enemy of grace and good design."

THE LAST WORD is from Mr. J.: "Rhythmic pace and fluid movement over-all does more for a woman's clothes than anything, I believe. I create 'great-lady' clothes so the models I select must look the part. Gaucheries of any kind play the character of my designs."

Check your motions and actions against these requirements of the designers. All such grace abilities are well within your reach if you are willing to keep yourself conscious of them. Not one is beyond any woman's capacity.

YOUR POSTURE

To achieve grace of the highest degree—to make yours the posture ideal—to improve stance, figure, health and the appearance of your clothes as well, read the informative, easy-to-follow booklet "YOUR POSTURE." Raisins and Cabbage Go Well Together

By Edith M. Barber

AT first glance, it would seem cabbage and raisins have very little in common. They are put together, and at the top of the list, however, as two foods that will be particularly plentiful this month. There will be heavy supplies of cabbage from the South and from the far West.

Of course, all of our raisins come from California and the small Thompson seedless grapes, the majority of them grown in the interest of our raisin supply, did particularly well this season. Both foods are unusually well endowed with minerals and, in some respects, they supplement each other. Cabbage is a fine source of vitamin C (ascorbic acid) which raisins lack, but the latter contributes a much larger quantity of iron than does cabbage.

While we generally eat cabbage and raisins separately, they do combine very well in salads and raisins are also a good addition to a sweet-sour cabbage recipe. For this, we usually choose a red cabbage, but the white will do very well.

Cabbage with Apples and Raisins. Four cups shredded cabbage, two cups sliced tart apples, one-half cup seedless raisins, salt, pepper, one-fourth cup brown sugar (firmly packed), two tablespoons vinegar and dot top with butter or margarine. Cover and bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: six servings.

Cabbage and Raisin Salad. One and one-half cups shredded white cabbage, one and one-half cups shredded red cabbage, one tablespoon minced onion, one-half cup seedless raisins, one-half cup mayonnaise, one-fourth cup sour cream. Mix cabbage with onion, raisins, mayonnaise and sour cream. Serve in cabbage or lettuce leaves and garnish with rings of green pepper and raisins. Yield: six servings.

Fix It Yourself By Hubbard Cobb

THAT'S the way it always seems to go. No sooner do you get finished telling people what to do when water works through a brick wall than you find that what they really want to know is how come water will seep through a wall covered with stucco.

Well the obvious thing to look for on a stucco wall are cracks. They don't have to be very wide cracks because as we've so often said, when driven by a strong wind, water can slip through a mighty small opening. Cracks, of course, should be filled as soon as possible with a stucco patching compound.

The next areas to look into are seams between the stucco and window and door frames. These are weak spots in any sort of construction and unless they are tightly caulked you'll have water seeping through to damage the interior wall.

Last of all there is the possibility of the stucco being porous. It does happen occasionally if an inferior grade of stucco has been used or if it has not been properly applied. In this case you've got very good chance of the correcting the situation with a cement paint or waterproofing stucco paint. Paints of this kind give good performance on exterior work.

Clean Dishes Important to Family Health

Clean hands and clean dishes will go a long way toward protecting your family from the infectious diseases that are so prevalent at this time of year, say health specialists of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

The homemaker should not only wash her hands frequently when she is preparing and handling food, but should also see that the youngsters do a little extra scrubbing when colds and flu bugs are in the air.

Plenty of soap, hot water and friction are musts for good dish washing. Water that is hot enough to kill bacteria is too hot for the hands, so a final scalding rinse is necessary. Water at a temperature of 170 to 180 degrees Fahrenheit will kill most germs. After a thorough rinsing in water this hot, you can eliminate dish wiping if you wish.

Sudsy washing water with an adequate amount of soap or detergent is a good cleansing agent. Don't forget to give a little extra rub to the rims of glasses and cups and the utensils that go in the mouth.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

MY husband and I were married at the age of 18. We now have three children. For the past two years he has been running around with another woman. He tells me he doesn't care for her and she says she doesn't care for him, but they keep seeing each other. If he didn't like her why does he go to see her? People tell me that if I really loved him I couldn't sit back and see him go out with her. I hate to give him up but I'm getting tired of it. If I say anything about this girl, he hits me. What shall I do? Am I being a fool for taking it?

TROUBLED.

You aren't being foolish in trying your best to work out the problem instead of running away from it, but I don't think you should try to work it out alone. It will require patience and courage on your part, but I would urge you to seek professional help to see if there isn't some solution which will give you at least a measure of happiness. Your own pastor can help you analyze the problem, or if you prefer the help of a community agency, the Family and Children's Service will offer sympathetic and understanding counseling. It will be best to telephone first for an appointment, FO. 2840.

Dear Martha:

I AM A 13-YEAR-OLD GIRL. The boy I go with insists that I meet him at an ice cream parlor where we both spend much of our time. I've asked him several times to come to my house but he always says he has a reason not to do so. Both my parents know about our going together and approve of it. Many times I have threatened to break up with him but he says he wouldn't care. I don't think I could possibly do without him, but I despise anyone who always wants my way. What should I do?

SWEETS.

At 13 you are too young to be so concerned about one boy, especially one who shows such a lack of manners that he refuses to come to your home or to call for you there. You'll be far happier if you go out with the crowd of young people from your school or church.

IN ANSWER TO V.T.: It is customary for the parents of the prospective bridegroom to write to the bride-elect's parents or to call on them. However, if they live out of the city and you do not hear from them, it would be gracious of you to write to them and invite them to come to St. Louis for the engagement party.

Simple prayers for children and grace to be said at table are included in Martha Carr's prayer leaflet. For your copy, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Age Levels

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.
Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development.

WHEN you say that the 10-year-old child does a certain thing, do you mean that all 10-year-olds do this thing? Or at least that they all ought to do the thing?

Parents ask us this question practically every day. We have given the answer often. But since people keep on asking, we conclude that we haven't given it often enough.

Of course the answer is, as a great many of you realize, that not all children of any given age behave or should behave in the same way.

For instance, we may tell you that the 8-year-old is as a rule a docile, friendly little creature who not only minds his mother but likes and wants to mind her—and that the 6-year-old is not docile and does not mind readily.

THIS MEANS MERELY that on the average, the kind of behavior which we describe as 8-year-old behavior, occurs when the child is around 8 years of age. That, on the average, the change in this behavior which we have designated as 6-year-old behavior occurs when the child is around six. And, most important, that the 6-year-old kind of behavior is the stage that follows the 5-year-old kind.

More often than not, we find that children as they grow up not only exhibit these different stages of behavior about as we describe them, but exhibit them in the order that we have described, and at the ages which we have indicated.

Some sort of general time-table is therefore often useful in warning you in advance what you may expect. And in giving you something to check against as your child grows up.

However, as in the case of any rule, there are many exceptions. Let's consider as a concrete example the temporary "good" stage which many 5-year-olds go through. Your child may be advanced and he may already have quieted down and reached this "good" stage by the time he is 4, or more likely 4½. He may be a little slower than the statistical average, and not reach this quieted down stage until he is 6.

A YEAR OR TWO variation either way is natural, and occurs in many cases.

Actually, the way that the stages follow each other in order is more important than the exact time at which they occur. Some scientists think it would be better to call all the stages A, B and C or something like that rather than 4-year-old, 5-year-old, 6-year-old, etc. We stick to the latter for convenience. It is easier and more meaningful to most people to speak in this way.

But whenever you read about an age level in our column, in books, or elsewhere, do not take this information too literally. Remember that it merely means in general, or on the average. And that many slight deviations are to be expected.

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

WHY not admit it? Why do so many girls and boys seem to hate to say those four simple little words, "I can't afford it"? It's no crime to be fresh out of folding money. It happens to everybody. It's no disgrace to be "between allowances" or "between paydays." It needn't make you less fun to be with, less attractive, less popular.

Some girls would rather "die" than admit to friends that they can't go to a movie with the gang because they're broke at the moment. And some of them sulk for days if their Mom and Dad can't afford to get a new TV, a new car, radio or a new outfit when they happen to want it. . . . says it gives them an inferiority complex or makes them ashamed of their homes . . . or worse still, of their parents. How silly can you get?

It's your personality that counts—what's in your mind and heart, not what's in your pocket. Surely you've noticed that it's the boy or girl with the friendliest personality and the nicest disposition who wins the "most popular vote," not the one with the most money.

Boys are just the same—or more so. If Bill happens to be low in cash, he's ashamed to say so and skips the usual Friday night date rather than mention the money matter. But his favorite date would rather hear the telephone jingle for a house date than not see Bill at all.

If she's a gold-digger, interested only in where Bill can take her, she's in the minority. Most girls want to see their dates even when their billfolds are flat—because they like the guys.

By Tallulah Bankhead

Fourteenth installment from the current best-selling book, "Tallulah: My Autobiography."

HAD I fled a nunnery, my marriage couldn't have created a greater hubbub in the newspapers. Back at my house on Long Island Sound for what we thought would be a two-week honeymoon, things started to pop. Reporters moved in on us in squads.

Through most of the stories ran a vein of sympathy for John. There were numerous tributes to his courage. Some of them hinted he was the most promising candidate for martyrdom since Lord Essex.

After we were divorced, John said he first suspected there might be flaws in our union when I urged him to have a Planter's Punch for breakfast. What a quibble! A Planter's Punch, loaded with orange and pineapple slices, a cherry or two, is rich in food value, a most invigorating tonic. John could never escape the suspicion he had married an institution, rather than a woman. So long had I been in the public domain, he felt himself an intruder.

He best expressed it on the opening night of "Antony and Cleopatra." Asked by our mutual friend, Eddie Bayles, what he was doing after the performance, John said, "I don't know, but I think I'm going up to Tallulah's." He'd only been married 10 weeks. Where the devil else would he go or should he go? Couldn't he have said, "I'm going home?"

Here's another Emery reflection: "Tallulah is the only woman I ever knew who could carry on a conversation, listen to the radio, read a book and do her hair at the same time." Questioned by one of Henry Luce's scouts when I was tapped for a Time cover, John was most co-operative. Asked how it felt being married to your historian, he said: "In a way it was like the rise, decline and fall of the Roman Empire."

For the record, if I may lift a line from Al Smith, it wasn't John's fault our marriage failed. My interests and enthusiasms are too random for sustained devotion. Other actor pairs have loved and married and endured. Witness the Lunts, Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier. Witness John Emery and Tamara Geva. Miss Geva is John's wife and has been these past 10 years. She's a good actress, too.

Electricity Takes The Labor Out of Making Ice Cream

Just mention the words "ice cream" and watch faces brighten—the children will glow with anticipation, the adults will gleam reminiscently as they recall the old-fashioned summer delight. But their enthusiasm may wane when they recall how their right arms ached after a session with the crank.

That is all changed today, however, when motive power for the modern ice cream freezer is no longer the good husky arms of volunteers, but the small electric motor that twirls a paddle known as a dasher about in the mixture of milk, flavoring and ice cream powder. The action stops when the dessert is ready for serving.

The modern mixer looks much like the outdated numbers, with one notable exception—that long crank that seemed to grow heavier with each turn has been replaced with a motor. This surmounts a metal container in which the ingredients are mixed. The container itself fits inside a wooden bucket, and the space between is filled with cracked ice and rock salt in a proportion of about three to one.

Agitating the mixture as it is cooled by the surrounding packing of ice and salt is imperative to the process. This beats air into the mixture to produce a palatable product. Ice cream without whipping would be like bread that has not risen—a sodden mass lacking in texture and delectability.

There was another drawback in the good old days. Once the mixture was frozen, all hands had to fall to and stow it away before it melted. Electricity has solved that, too.

Ice cream which has been made extra delicious with fruits, frozen by the family, can be stored for future enjoyment in the home freezer.

Tallulah's Autobiography—

The Critics Blast Her as Cleopatra

One Said She 'Seemed More a Serpent of Suwannee Than of Nile'; Why Marriage Failed

TALLULAH BANKHEAD AS CLEOPATRA IN SHAKESPEARE'S VERSION OF "ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA" IN 1937. THE ROLE BROUGHT HER "THE WORST CRITICAL LAMBASTING I EVER EXPERIENCED."

Now that I'd been wooed and wed, let's get back to how I curried a classic.

SINCE Shakespeare coined "Antony and Cleopatra" back in 1607 a great many actresses have tackled the seductress, among them Lillie Langtry, Constance Collier, Edith Evans, Jane Cowl and Julia Marlowe. Although I had been 20 years in the theater I had yet to appear in a play hallowed by time. "La Dame aux Camellias" was only weather-beaten. Shakespeare, Ibsen and their like had never challenged me. But the plays in which I fumed after my return from England made me susceptible when it was suggested I impersonate Cleopatra.

The producer must have had an inkling of what was to come. His name was Rowland Stebbins, but for this venture he chose to operate under the alias of Lawrence Rivers. Stebbins-Rivers gave the play a very flossy production. That I might have ample time to master its complexities, its rhythms and poetic flights, he booked it for six weeks on the road prior to our New York opening.

There was another reason why I was eager to come to grips with Cleo. The producer and director agreed with me that John Emery would make a capital Octavius Caesar. Did we succeed in "Antony and Cleopatra" John and I might move on to other joint triumphs—as had the Lunts. It was a pleasing prospect. Only I was vile in the role.

On Armistice day, 1937, I received the worst critical lambasting I ever experienced. There was no dissenting verdict. My old friend Richard Watts Jr., wrote in the New York Tribune: "Miss Bankhead seemed more a serpent of the Suwannee than of the Nile." John Mason Brown, later to careen with superlatives, mowed me down: "Tallulah Bankhead barged down the aisle as Cleopatra and sank. As the serpent of the Nile she proves to be no more dangerous than a garter snake."

"Miss Bankhead played the Queen of the Nile," spit out George Jean Nathan, then took time out to warn the composers that "Nile" was no typographical error. Even staid Brooks Atkinson joined the posse. "The Serpent of the Nile is definitely not Miss Bankhead's dish," he wrote in the Times.

I was in San Francisco in "Reflected Glory" when first I collided with "Gone With the Wind." Immediately I was inflamed with the desire to play Scarlett O'Hara, and I was even screen-tested for the role in Hollywood.

Vivien Leigh, who grabbed the brass ring, won the Academy Award for her effort. But I'll go to my grave convinced that I may have drawn the cheers of Longstreet and Beauregard and Robert E. Lee had I been permitted to wrestle with Rhett Butler.

My emotions shot up like a geyser when I saw "Gone With the Wind" on the screen. As Sherman put Atlanta directly behind me applauded furiously, then cut loose with a couple of bravos. I swiveled about and spat out, "You dirty Communist!" though "carpetbagger" was what I meant. Too late I discovered it was Amos Pinchoff, father of the lovely Rosamond, and an old friend of mine. He had timed his outburst to test my conduct under fire, though aware his action might incite a riot. In mid-April, 1938, I was scraping bottom. Scarlett had been denied me. I had a husband, a handful of pawn tickets, a nervous landlord and an offer to appear in "The Circle," a 17-year-old comedy by the Somerset Maugham who clipped me from behind when I was on my way to a touchdown in "Rain."

I WAS in no position to air a grudge. If I didn't find employment pronto, I might become a public charge. When William A. Brady beckoned me to his museum, I jumped at the opportunity to play the role my old friend, Estelle Winwood, had played 17 years earlier. John, growing a little gaunt, was but a jump behind me. Grace George, in private life Mrs. Brady and one of the ablest comedienne of our time, was to play the leading part, created by Belasco's famous redhead, Mrs. Leslie Carter. Mrs. Carter once swung from a bell-clapper in "Shenandoah." Remember? Neither do I.

When he felt a spring revival coming on him, Brady did not think it politic to pamper his players with high salaries. His judgment couldn't be faulted. An impecunious lot, actors, faced with a summer of idleness, are in no position to haggle over fees. Set up in Brady's own theater, "The Circle" endured until wilted by hot weather—a run of nine weeks. Who was I to jeer at a nine-week run? I had cooled off Cleopatra in five performances.

John and I were still strapped when "The Circle" came apart at the seams. Almost at once we plunged into "I Am Different," a Hungarian misadventure by Lily Hartvany. Zoe Akins had decided it for American consumption. Defying the thermometer, it opened in Chicago in August, by Thanksgiving day had edged as far east as Washington. There it collapsed from public lethargy. It had been a shambles from the start. It toured three months only because Lee Shubert believed in miracles.

Mr. Lee, as he is known in the trade, was hard to convince. Basking in the glory of the triumph at Cannes the following summer, he said he would bring it into New York with Constance Bennett in the role which had floored me. Cooler heads—among them Miss Bennett's—prevailed. New York has had its share of indignities. It could well be spared that one.

Declarer let West's opening lead of the diamond jack hold the trick, and West then led his low diamond. The spade deuce was played to the king, and on a second spade lead East captured the jack and returned the diamond queen. South won and finessed the club jack through West, then let the club ten ride also.

Now, with the club queen located but with communications between dummy and the closed hand highly restricted, South led his low heart and, when West played the seven, went right in with dummy's queen. It might be thought that this had guess cost South his game—but it didn't. East, having smothered the heart queen, promptly returned a heart. South's blank ace won—and now a spade led to the queen made things very uncomfortable for West. He could not well discard the heart jack; nor could he safely give up a club, because South could then overtake dummy's king and cash his last card in the suit. So West chose to abandon the high diamond. That, however, was just as fatal. After taking the spade trick, South cashed the club king, then threw West in with the heart, and West had to yield the fulfilling trick to South's ace of clubs.

Today's Question.

"Is it good bridge to bid a game which requires two successful finessees out of three available? Discuss."

Answer: Yes. Your chance to win two out of three is precisely the same as your chance to win one finesse.

Ione Hedges To Be Bride This Month

MISS IONE HEDGES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Adair Hedges of Gary, Ind., and her fiancé, Navy cadet Christopher Coombs Larimore, will be married Saturday night, Feb. 28 at Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Webster Groves. After the service, to be performed at 8 o'clock by the Rev. James M. Lichliter, guests will attend a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac A. Hedges, the prospective bride's grandparents, 9 Westmoreland place.

Miss Hedges, a Washington University graduate, has lived in St. Louis for the past few years with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Norris H. Allen, 4900 Pershing avenue. However, she went home in October, remaining until last month when she returned here to complete plans for the wedding.

Matron of honor for the bride will be Mrs. William Huse Hedges, her sister-in-law, of Port Chester, N. Y., who will arrive in St. Louis Wednesday, Feb. 25. She will be accompanied by her young daughter, Katherine, who will serve as flower girl, and son, Thomas Hedges. Her husband will join them the following day.

Bridesmaids will include, Miss Ann Larimore, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Larimore, the prospective bridegroom's cousin, and Miss Christine Marriott of Foley, Ala., cousin of Miss Hedges. Mr. Larimore, having recently completed his Naval Air Corps training, is at present awaiting orders at the Naval Air Station, Hutchinson, Kan. Although his attendance list is incomplete, he asked his brother, Taylor Larimore to be best man. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor Larimore, Coral Gables, Fla.

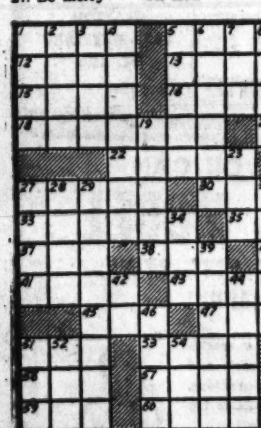

MRS. WILLIAM D. COLLINS, 625 South Skinner boulevard, is in St. Petersburg, Fla., a guest at the Vinoy Hotel on Tampa Bay.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID E. WOODS, 625 South Skinner boulevard, who are spending the season at the Vineta Hotel, Palm Beach, Fla., gave a cocktail party Thursday evening in the hotel Pavilion in honor of their daughter, Mrs. Robert N. Arthur, 14 Carverwood, Clayton, who is spending two weeks with her parents. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur K. Howell and Mr. and Mrs. George B. Bullock, all St. Louisans.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrison are guests at the Vineta hotel for several weeks; Mr. and Mrs. Howell have returned to the Vineta for their fourth season. Dr. and Mrs. Sheldon Ackley of New Hyde Park, N. Y., will arrive Thursday to spend the weekend with Miss Meredith McCargo, 5415 Barmore avenue. Dr. Ackley, who is leader of the Long Island Ethical Society, will speak at 11 o'clock Sunday morning in Sheldon Memorial before the Ethical Society of St. Louis on "Our Controversial Founding Fathers." Dr. and Mrs. Ackley will be honored Thursday evening at a dinner at the memorial.

Emily Bettman, Jerome H. Mayer Are Married

A WEDDING which took place last night in the Tivoli room of the Park Plaza Hotel was that of Miss Emily Pollak Bettman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Bettman Jr., 6347 Waterman avenue, University City, to Jerome Herbert Mayer, Mr. Mayer is the son of Mrs. and Mrs. Herman B. Mayer, 49 Briarcliff, Ladue.

White stock and greenery bordered by large standards holding lighted tapers were arranged in the west end of the room, providing an improvised altar, and clusters of gardenias and vanda orchids marked off an aisle. Rabbi Jerome Grollman officiated.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Samuel M. Zivi of Kansas City, Mo., her sister, matron of honor, and another sister, Miss Suzy Bettman, maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Alfred H. Meyer, the bridegroom's sister-in-law, and Mrs. Irvin H. Ralisher.

Copenhagen blue organza gowns were worn by the young women attendants. Their frocks were tucked across the shoulders and styled with waltz-length skirts. They wore small shawl jackets to cover their shoulders and carried white prayer books adorned with white lilac and ranunculi, flown in from Holland and California, respectively.

THE BRIDE'S GOWN was white lace and satin. The lace bodice was made with a wide round neckline and long fitted sleeves, and the skirt, fashioned with long front panels of lace, reached to a long train. An illusion veil fell over the train from a close fitting cap of tulle etched in pearls. The bride carried a white satin prayer book marked with white orchids.

Sudekum-Sheridan Wedding in May

A BRIDE of May 9 will be Miss Mary Patricia Sheridan, whose marriage to Frederick John Sudekum Jr. will take place at 11 o'clock that morning at St. Joseph's Church in Clayton. The Rev. William F. Glynn will officiate. Miss Sheridan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Sheridan, 1111 Pointe à la Poudre, has asked Miss Patricia Judd to serve as maid of honor. Her bridesmaids will be Mrs. Elvira Bauer of Columbia, Mo., sister of the bridegroom; Miss Gwendolyn Reilly and Mrs. Edward J. Sheridan Jr.

Miss Reilly has planned a cocktail party for May 2 in honor of the engaged couple to take place at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Leo J. Reilly, 6319 McPherson avenue. Miss Judd will be hostess at the spinster dinner to take place at the Missouri Athletic Club, the date to be set later.

Dr. McCluer to Speak At Lenten Program

THE first lenten program at the St. Louis Woman's Club will take place Thursday with Dr. Francis Lewis McCluer speaking at 11:30 o'clock. After his talk there will be a luncheon for members and their guests.

Dr. McCluer is president of Lindenwood College and a recently appointed member of the Educational Policies Commission of the National Education Association. He also is a member of the National Committee for the Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government. A native Missourian, Dr. McCluer received his A.B. and M.A. degrees from Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., where he served as president from 1933 through 1947. He earned his Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago.

brother's best man, serving with Mr. Ralisher, Mr. Zivi, Robert Newman, Omaha, Neb., and three of the bride's uncles, Sidney I. Rothschild Jr., Lewis Bettman and Louis Rothschild, Kansas City.

The receiving line formed at the opposite end of the room before a large bamboo screen covered with lavender orchids and woodwardia. Mrs. Bettman was gowned in yellow chiffon, the bridegroom's mother in pale green, and both had yellow orchids pinned at their shoulders. After a wedding trip to Acapulco, Mexico, the bride and bridegroom will make their home at 6240 Southwood avenue, Clayton.

Webster Groves

MRS. JAMES OSWALD of Cleveland Heights, O., departed yesterday for St. Petersburg, Fla., where she had been visiting here the past two weeks as the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Marc W. Pender, 415 West Jackson road. Among the friends of Mrs. Pender who entertained Mrs. Oswald were Mrs. John W. Beal, 38 Algonquin woods, Mrs. Joseph E. Burger, 404 Yorkshire place; Mrs. David M. Skilling, 610 South Berry road; Mrs. Tracy B. Madole, 344 Planthurst road, and Mrs. Clark P. Pike, 318 North Woodlawn avenue, Kirkwood.

Mrs. Earl M. Page, 650 Lockley place, will entertain at a luncheon Saturday at her home in honor of Miss Phyllis Jeanine Loomis who is to become the bride of Paul Dixon Majesky March 7. Miss Loomis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. Loomis of Salem, Ill., has been living in St. Louis at 1260 Goodfellow boulevard.

Entertaining guests Sunday evening at a small dinner party for the engaged couple were Mr. and Mrs. Girard C. Varnum, 655 North Kirkwood road. On Saturday Mrs. William Larimore Jr. had a luncheon in honor of Miss Loomis. Wednesday evening Miss Susan Blaw, who shares the apartment with Miss Loomis, and her cousin, Miss Norma Blaw, will give an informal party for the bride-to-be.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Majesky, 302 Bristol road, parents of the prospective bridegroom, will give a dinner at their home in the near future. They are also planning to entertain the wedding party at dinner after rehearsal on Feb. 28. The second party will be given at the Southern Gardens Restaurant in Salem.

The wedding is planned for 3 o'clock in the afternoon at the Presbyterian Church, Salem. The Rev. Edwin Nesbitt of St. Louis will officiate at the service after which there will be an informal reception at the church. Miss Susan Blaw will be maid of honor and Miss Sally Wells of Wooster, O., bridesmaid. John D. Owen is to be best man for Mr. Majesky while groomsmen include James Davis, Robert Mueller, James Varnum and Robert Williams. A friend of the young couple, Ernest Hares of St. Louis, will be organist.

Mr. Majesky and his bride will live in their newly-purchased home at 418 Longfellow avenue, Kirkwood.

DR. AND MRS. BRUCE KENAMORE, 324 South Elm avenue, returned Sunday night from Chicago where they spent several days at the Blackstone Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Everett L. Moore, who formerly lived here, recently visited friends briefly in Webster Groves en route South. With them was their son, Everett Jr. The three will visit Pvt. Tod Moore, the older son, who is convalescing in an Army hospital in San Antonio, from injuries received while on duty in Korea. He expects to be released from the Army in a few months.

Before returning to their home in Scarsdale, N.Y., the Moores will visit in New Orleans and Florida.

Leaving last week for their home in Oakland, Calif., were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel P. Lane. Many parties were given for the visitors during this recent visit and an earlier one in December. Between the two visits here the Lanes spent several weeks in Cincinnati with relatives.

My Day

By Eleanor Roosevelt

I WAS very much a Democrat on Saturday. In the morning I spent a little while listening to reports at a meeting called by Stephen Mitchell, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

These reports were made by men and women representing their organizations, and were certainly encouraging. They voiced determination to make advances by 1954 which would show tangibly that the people had returned to their Democratic allegiance.

Saturday night at the dinner given to Adlai Stevenson, where since the election, I was very proud of leadership he was giving the Democrats.

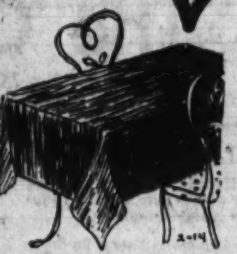

Mr. Stevenson painted the ideal role for a party out of power to follow, but was realistic enough to say that we would doubtless fall to the temptations of partisanship now and then. In everything which concerns the welfare of our country, however, we must try to back the Administration when we are convinced that the policies advocated are for the national good.

IN RESPONDING to Mr. Stevenson's speech, Senator Lehman made a very moving appeal in which he said if we did not remain the party of progress, of progress for all the people, we would not deserve a return to power. I think one of the most effective speeches of the evening was made by Miss Margaret Truman in a few short words. She looked charming, and when she said she thought the time had come when every Democrat should stand up and be counted. I think she gave just the right touch to the gathering.

It was an enormous gathering that did not bear the signs of a party in defeat. I have rarely seen tables in both tiers, as well as covering the entire floor, of the ballroom at the Waldorf. They told me with satisfaction that 1700 people were present, and since most of them had paid their $100, it must have been a help to the party's treasury!

President Truman sent a signed $100 bill even though he could not be present.

I SAT BY Sam Rayburn, who has been so long the Speaker of the House that it seems almost impossible not to consider him "Mr. Speaker." Averell Harriman, presiding, did a really wonderful piece of work in getting everything exactly on time. He made an amusing crack at one point while we were waiting for TV to pick up Mr. Stevenson. Looking at the gathering with satisfaction, Mr. Harriman said: "You see, the Union Pacific always runs its trains on time." This was good preparation for some of Mr. Stevenson's witticisms, which kept the crowd both laughing and applauding.

The two congressional speakers seemed well content, from the Democratic point of view, with some of the recent Washington happenings. Mr. Rayburn remarked that he was "glad to come to New York City," where occasionally he heard "people talk sense."

Busy as Beavers Junior Misses Get the Jobs

By Inez Robb

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (INS). COMPARED to the all American teen-time girl, the beaver and the busy bee are a pair of lazy louts. The vast majority of the nation's junior misses will do anything honest to earn pin money. In return for a modicum of spending money, they do everything from baby-sitting to lawn mowing to wood chopping.

The Tide people (time and tide wait for no suds) have just turned up a vast array of statistics about teen-aged girls as a result of a coast-to-coast survey of same. The Tide poll shows that the girls are substantial citizens in their own right and by no means dedicated solely to driving their parents crazy.

BELIEVE IT or not, 79.5 per cent of the nation's up-dated flappers earn part or all of their own spending money. And 62.9 per cent never had it so good as baby-sitters. In fact, baby-sitting for all practical intents and purposes is a teen-agers' monopoly, and the United States Government might well snoop around to see if the kids are violating the Sherman anti-trust act.

But if a majority of the girls find baby-sitting the easiest way, there are innumerable rugged individuals who do it the hard way via driving tractors, weeding gardens, waxing floors and picking fruit.

Nothing is too hard work for the teen-age division of the weaker sex. A 16-year-old girl in Idaho earns spending money as janitor of her church. It surprised me, and it may surprise you, to learn that five per cent of the nation's teen-aged girls take the chocolate bars out of their brothers' mouths by carrying newspaper routes, washing cars and mowing lawns.

An Iowa high school girl, who is already crowding Hettie Green, makes her pin-money by preparing income-tax returns for her grown-up neighbors who can't make head or tail of tax forms. A girl-child over in New Jersey paints houses (inside or out) in her spare time.

Marlolois Wollett, 17, of Aldie, Ia., sells and trades in antiques after school hours, and has been at it ever since she was 12. Marlolois seemed to express the sentiment of the nation's teen-aged girls when she said:

"I feel our parents owe us a warm place to sleep, good food and decent clothes. But we, in this day and age, should provide the luxuries for ourselves."

THE SURVEY also reveals that little girls who once practiced their music lessons now make hay by giving piano, violin, flute and vocal lessons. Ballet lessons, too. Nimble fingers monogram linens, make paper flowers, fashion shell jewelry and bake cakes for extra dough-er-me.

Life is by no means all cokes and skittles for junior misses. The poll discovered that they are willing, cheerful helpers at home.

Almost every mother interviewed said she aimed to do for her daughters "what my mother failed to do for me—teach me to cook, sew and do laundry. I want my daughter to be able to stand on her own feet."

The CRUEL SEA

by Nicholas Monsarrat

Blindly First Lt. Bennett had been "left off" the captain. H.M.S. Compass Rose has been put through the testing rigors of sea trials, gunnery and depth-charge tests, emerging as a ship with a developing personality, and the corvette assigned to anti-sub duty in the North Atlantic now prepares for its final prep at Ardnacraish before heading into the open sea as an integral unit of a convoy.

CHAPTER NINE.
VICE ADM. SIR VINCENT MURRAY-FORBES, K.C.B., D.S.O., Royal Navy, sat at his desk in the operations building overlooking Ardnacraish harbor, playing despatch with a silver paper-knife engraved: "Presented to Lieutenant-Commander V. Murray-Forbes, R.N., on relinquishing command of H.M.S. Dragonfly. From the Ship's Company. October 1909. Good luck."

He did not see the engraved sentences: indeed, he had not read them for many years; but they had a direct connection with his despatch, and especially the date, which was incontrovertible. It was something he carried with him always, like an unlucky charm; for it meant, by inference, that he was in his sixtieth year, and too old to go to sea again.

The Admiral looked what he was: an old sailor, and surely due for retirement after a lifetime of distinguished service in the navy. It was a lined face, strong, tremendously wrinkled round the eyes: the broad stretch of gold braid on his sleeves was impressive, and the rows of medal-ribbons seemed no more than the face deserved.

The D.S.O. was Jutland, the K.C.B. represented a long and brilliant naval career, from C-in-C. China to C-in-C. Home Fleet and then to a notable shore appointment: the rest of the ribbons signified that he had managed to stay alive a long time in various odd parts of the globe. Too long, indeed, for his present peace of mind: the year 1918 when he was captain in command of a destroyer flotilla, had been the peak of his fighting days, and now this new war had come too late for him to start them all over again. For though he had managed to defer his overdue retirement, it had not been for the reason that he had hoped.

They would not send him back to sea. "Not repeat too old," he wrote in firm capitals on the signal-pad in front of him, and then, as firmly, scored it out again.

But that defiant scrawl represented something that could not be scored out. Three months earlier, after intensive wangling, he had very nearly bought off the appointment that he craved for; but 59 years could not be gained, and the Sea Lord who was his personal friend had had to pass him by. Instead—"A most responsible job," they reassured him: "a very important one where your experience will be vital." So the only sphere where he really wanted to use that experience—afloat—was finally closed to him: the best answer they could give him was Ardnacraish, destined to be the training base for every new escort in the Western Approaches Command. It was important, but it wasn't what he wanted; and now he looked at Ardnacraish and, with his eyes still turned back to that sea-going appointment, he cursed it roundly.

ARDNACRAISH might have returned the compliment, though with less justice: what the Admiral had done to it had the overriding sanction of war.

SEVERAL years ago I received a letter from an Australian woman who complained about an idea which many persons abroad seemed to have concerning Australia. She said that letters which had come to her had indicated a belief that Australia was populated largely by people with black skins.

The truth, of course, is very different. Australia does have natives known as blackfellows, but they make up less than one per cent of the people. Almost all of the Australians are members of the white race. Because of their strange ways, the blackfellows have obtained wide publicity, but they are fewer in number than the Indians of the United States or Canada.

IN MUCH the same manner, some persons have gained false ideas about the people of the Philippine Islands. Many articles about the Moros, Negrites and so on have been published in geographic magazines and elsewhere. Savage, or half-savage, people do live in the Philippines, but they make up only a small portion of the population.

The vast majority of the residents on the islands are civilized. They can read and write, and are known for their pleasant outlook. They belong to the Malay race, and have light brown or medium brown skins.

There are more than 7000 islands in the Philippine group! These islands are the upper parts of mountains which were covered, in large part, by ocean water long ago.

The largest island is Luzon, which is about equal to the state of Ohio in area. The second island, Mindanao, is nearly the same size as Indiana.

THE REST of the islands go down to very small areas, some
